XENIA WOMAN HELD IN PLOT

WILL FACE CHARGES FOR CONNECTION IN FOILED JAIL BREAK

"Xenia Nell" Accused;
Former Husband Attempts Break

Mrs. John Krise, nee Nellie Moore, E. Market St., known in some quarters as "Xenia Nell," was arrested by Patrolman Fred Jones Friday afternoon and returned to Dayton by Montgomery County authorities for investigation in connection with a bold attempt by her former husband, Brooks Milligan, 36, to force the release of Albert Brown, 25, Springfield, from the Montgomery County Jail Thursday night.

Authorities believe a visit made by the woman to Brown in jail Thursday may have some connection with the plot in which Milligan was overpowered by a deputy sheriff and jailed in the jail office, after forcing an entrance at the point of a pistol and demanding the keys to Brown's cell. Brown was awaiting trial for participation in the $3,000 robbery of the Vandalia State Bank July 7 and was under $25,000 bond. Milligan was free on $10,000 bond in connection with the same case, having furnished bond November 10.

Deputies questioned Brown regarding his visit from the woman Thursday, but did not believe the story he told. Authorities now think she may have informed Brown that Milligan was to make his bold attempt to free his "pal." Milligan first encountered Russell Knaurer, deputy, in the jail corridor and forced him back into the office at the point of his gun. In the office they encountered Robert Prear, jailer.

There Knaurer reached for Milligan's gun, and closed his hand on the weapon as Milligan pulled the trigger. The hammer caught the deputy's finger, lacerating it, but failing to explode the cartridge. Knaurer felled Milligan with a blow from a blackjack, and when he attempted to shoot again, Prear grabbed the gun, also stopping the pistol hammer. Milligan was locked up pending filing of charges of attempting to kill, carrying concealed weapons and attempted jail breaking and his bond in the previous charge will probably be increased. Authorities learned Friday he had planned to rob the Vandalia bank again Friday and had robbed several filling stations since gaining his freedom on bond.

They believe Mrs. Krise was left in the auto in which Milligan drove to the jail and that she fled when he failed to return. The auto was recovered and found to be stolen. The woman was arrested here at the request of Dayton authorities. She was mixed up in a liquor case here several years ago but is reported to have told police that she had severed relations with the gang with which she formerly associated.

WED IN GOTHAM

NEW-YORK, Nov. 21.—Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Henry Wilson were on their honeymoon today, having been married here yesterday in the chapel of Trinity Church. The ceremony was witnessed by the bride's father, "General" Jacob S. Coxey, leader of the famed march of the unemployed in 1894.

Wilson is employed by a New York advertising agency.

OHIO EATS TURKEY THIS YEAR

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 21.—Turkey dinners will be the principal repast in Ohio this Thanksgiving, according to present indications. Those who know say that more families have paced orders for turkey this year than ever before.

Prices are cheaper—that's why.

In northern Ohio, the fowls are selling around thirty-five cents per pound, dressed. In contrast to fifty-five cents a pound last year.

In southern Ohio markets, turkeys are quoted at seven cents per pound less than last year and fourteen cents under the prevailing price of the war-time period.

Instead of losing its popularity as the chief article of meat for annual holiday, turkey seems to be gaining in Ohio homes.

WHERE TWISTER TOOK LIVES OF 18 PERSONS

Here is a devastated section of Bethany, Okla., religious community that was struck by a tornado which claimed the lives of eighteen persons and injured 100. In two minutes the twister wiped out the eastern half of the little town, which is a suburb of Oklahoma City. A series of tornadoes did property damage to the extent of a million dollars in small communities of Kansas, Arkansas and Oklahoma.

FEDERAL DRY FORCE IS EMBARRASSED BY GRAPE JUICE ISSUE

"Hands-Off" Policy Will Prevail, Is Opinion

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—The federal government is proceeding gingerly—and with considerable embarrassment—in the matter of dealing with grape juice products that skirt the edge of the Volstead law.

The government's dilemma is that the government itself has fostered, supported and encouraged the production of grapes far beyond the country's capacity to consume them unless the excess production can find an outlet in wine-making. And wine-making may or may not be against the law. The department of justice shies away from the question with remarkable agility.

For the time being, Attorney General Mitchell and Prohibition Director Amos W. W. Woodcock have decided there will be no change in the government policy, instituted a year ago, that there will be no government interference with wine-making in the home, providing it is for home consumption and not for sale.

The department of justice is sedulously avoiding the establishment of any fixed policy dealing with the sale and advertising of grape concentrates.

Attorney General Mitchell said he prefers to deal with specific cases as they arise, rather than lay down any broad general policy. The embarrassment of the department of justice is really acute because the federal farm board has extended to the California grape growers credit to the extent of more than $16,000,000. Presumably, the board would not have risked its money unless it was satisfied of the legal safety and permanence of the business.

COMPLETES FLIGHT

TOKIO, Nov. 21.—Completing her long flight by several stages from England to Japan, Mrs. Victor Bruce of London landed her plane safely on Osaka Airfield today.

Barring a minor mishap when she was forced down on the Persian Hills recently, the flight was made without difficulty.

OH, THESE COLLEGIANS!

Ohio State Students Riot In Theater But Girls Battle At Ohio Wesleyan

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 21.—Authorities of Ohio State University opened an inquiry today into a riot and free-for-all fight waged in a downtown theater here last night following a rally parade when the Buckeye football team entrained for Champaign, Ill., for the annual game with the University of Illinois.

Eight students were arrested. They were released by Chief of Police Harry E. French when Joseph A. Park, dean of men at the university, took the students into custody of his office.

Edward J. Melniker, manager of the theater, refused to press charges against the student rioters and the matter was turned over to Dean Park.

The fight began when about 50 of the paraders left the rally at Union Station and attempted to rush the doors of the theater and the ushers tried to prevent them.

During the parade, headed by the 120-piece Ohio State band, nearly 1,000 students blocked traffic, pulled trolleys from street cars and caused slight damage to property.

DELAWARE, O., Nov. 21.—An unusual class fight, waged entirely by women students at Ohio Wesleyan University here, was probed by officials of the school today. The riot was halted by police.

The senior class rules committee yesterday ordered all freshmen girls to wear their berets. Penalty for violation of the order was a thorough ducking. The freshmen replied they didn't want to wear them and declared they would rather burn them.

The sophomores then took a hand and marched in a body to the freshmen cottages. Some of the frosh were ducked with flour and water.

The first-year women then organized, charged the upper classmen and the battle was on.

Following the fight, the freshmen marched through downtown streets in snake-dance formation.

"Nothing To Say" Claims Buckley, Back From Cell

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 21.—"I am on parole—I have nothing to say."

With these words, Bert B. Buckley, former state treasurer, returned to Ohio today from Atlanta Federal Penitentiary, where he has been serving a term for his part in a Cincinnati beer conspiracy.

But while restrictions sealed his lips, the former state official did have a few things to say.

Pointing to his wife, who came here from Columbus to greet her husband, Buckley remarked to reporters:

"This is the young lady who rolled up a vote of 105,000 for my sake."

Buckley, looking robust and apparently in the best of spirits, was met at the train by Mrs. Buckley and their two young daughters. All three were radiantly happy and the mother, appearing almost as youthful as her pretty daughters.

EMERGENCY PLAN OF HIGHWAY BUILDING WILL BE SUGGESTED

Program Would Aid Unemployment Is Believed

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—An emergency highway program designed to provide employment for several hundred thousand will be proposed to congress with the endorsement of the bureau of public roads and the American Association of state highway officials, members of congress were informed today.

State Highway Director Robert Wald is Ohio's representative in the highway officials association. The program calls for advancement of the annual $125,000,000 federal and highway appropriation and in addition, the slashing of virtually all restrictions which now slow up the joint federal-state highway program.

Under the plan, thus far developed by representatives of the state highway commissions and federal government, the 50-50 plan of road building would be abandoned during a one-year emergency period, thus permitting the federal government to pay the entire cost of a project.

The states, however, would be required to reimburse the government in future years to make the program ultimately comply with the 50-50 basis under which federal aid highways are now built.

CHICAGO RALLIES TO END GANGLAND RULE AND CONTROL CRIME

SOVIET RUSSIA NOW BEING ATTACKED BY PROPAGANDA WAVE

Anti-Bolshevistic Rumors Harassing Republic

By OTTO D. TOLISCHUS
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent
(Copyright 1930 By I. N. S.)

BERLIN, Nov. 21.—The union of Socialist Soviet republics, struggling through a morass of economic, political and social difficulties to reduce to reality the aims and ideals of Nicolai Ilyavitch Lenin, thus far has weathered internal storms and external complications.

Today it is battling anew an old enemy, it is running the gauntlet of anti-Bolshevistic propaganda. From hostile hotbeds of rumor and hearsay throughout Europe there is being spread a grapevine of anti-Soviet reports ranging from serious disaffection in the army to counter-revolutionary plots fostered by members of the government themselves and conspiracies against the lives of Soviet leaders.

The Soviet government has denied them all or with stinging invective characterized them unworthy of denials.

But recalling the age-old adage that "where there is smoke there is fire," competent international observers have sought to penetrate beneath the surface and determine just what foundation there may be for the sudden flood of rumor and report.

The verdict seems to be that the rumors undoubtedly are the product of growing economic difficulties and increasing dissatisfaction among the masses in Soviet Russia, which is threatening to crack the rigorous discipline of the Soviet party and manifesting itself in growing opposition to the dictatorship of Josef Stalin.

The increasing number of summary executions for political offenses; the mass trials of alleged counter-revolutionaries on charges of sabotage and the implication of external forces in anti-Soviet activities are interpreted as evidence of growing nervousness among the solons of the Soviet regime as well as of serious hitches in the vaunted "five year plan."

Responsible and conservative sections of the German press discredit the reports, while all reliable sources are unanimous in believing they are the work of anti-Soviet propagandists. But even the Soviets themselves do not pretend the difficulties are non-existent.

Three recent events are more or less illustrative.

ADOPT TOTAL PLAN OF ARMS LIMITATION

Geneva, Nov. 21.—A proposal to limit armaments totally rather than categorically was adopted by the League of Nations preparatory disarmament commission today by a vote of nineteen to two, the United States and Japan opposing the plan.

Under the plan adopted by the commission, armaments would be limited by a maximum expenditure for all equipment combined, leaving it up to the individual countries to apportion the amount among its army, navy and air force.

The plan was approved after a discussion during which the limitation by three categories—land, air, and naval—was considered.

Ambassador Hugh S. Gibson, head of the United States delegation, and M. Sato, Japan's chief representative, each declared that their countries preferred the latter method of armament limitation.

Heartened By Federal Support Capone Ace Convicted

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—Spurred by the concerted campaign of the federal government to crush organized crime here, virtually every law enforcement agency in Chicago today rallied its forces to break the power of gang rule.

Announcement of the federal government's war against the rule of bomb and gun, made in Washington by Attorney General Mitchell, was greeted here with an enthusiastic response from city and state authorities. Wholesale arrests of gangsters were anticipated.

The conviction of Jack Guzik, Capone business manager and public enemy was viewed by police and the "secret six" committee of the Association of Commerce as the most far-reaching blow dealt thus far to the Capone gang. Guzik faces a possible sentence of fifteen years in prison for income tax evasion.

It was revealed here that the federal authorities are being supported by the "fortifying and strengthening" of the various federal agencies.

Investigators from Washington have been sent here and the internal revenue department's intelligence unit has been reinforced with more agents.

One hundred law enforcement officers, judges, professors and civic leaders met at a police conference yesterday and united to cooperate wholeheartedly in the war on criminal forces. Whether their help will be called on by the federal authorities remained a question.

The conference adopted resolutions recommending a state clearing house for criminal records and urging adoption of the criminal code recently worked out by the American law institute.

EX-OHIO OFFICIAL WILL FACE CHARGES

CLEVELAND, Nov. 21.—Floyd Waite, former state director of finance under Governor Harry L. Davis, was sought by police today to answer charges brought against him in connection with his conduct in handling a $100,000 receivership for the Clark Transportation Co., Cleveland.

A capias warrant for Waite's arrest was issued in common pleas court yesterday by Judge Carl V. Weyandt, before he stepped down to assume his new position on the court of appeals bench today.

The arrest was ordered when Waite failed to appear at the hearing of the suit charging him with misconduct in the handling of the receivership. Waite was relieved of his duties as receiver of the defunct company last September 26 by Judge Weyandt.

ZANESVILLE FIRE CHIEF SUSPENDED

ZANESVILLE, O., Nov. 21.—Fire Chief Scott Power was under suspension today following charges of misconduct and incompetency which were made by Safety Director W. P. Wells.

The charges were filed by the presentation of a petition signed by eighteen city firemen and eight taxpayers with the civil service commission.

A hearing has been set for next Monday.

The department was placed in charge of Assistant Fire Chief David Reed.

DEMOCRATS WILL ADOPT DRY REPEAL PLANK DECLARES COX

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—A prediction of a prohibition repeal plank in the Democrats' platform in 1932, which was made here by James M. Cox, former governor of Ohio and candidate for president, aroused considerable discussion today.

Cox, who is in New York to attend the wedding today of his son, James M. Cox, Jr., to Miss Helen Ramsey of St. Louis and Miami Beach, said he regarded the prospects for a Democratic victory in 1932 bright, providing the Democrats entered the battle "with no thought except the simple political philosophy of Thomas Jefferson."

NORRIS RETURNS TO TAKE COMMAND OVER INSURGENT SALONS

Nebraskan Will Be Important Figure In Congress

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—The political pot began boiling in the nation's capital today as Senator George W. Norris, gray-haired Nebraskan, returned from an overwhelming re-election to resume command of the Republican insurgents.

Ranked as one of the greatest political strategists ever to serve in the senate, Norris held the spotlight of interest since he leads the little group who hold a balance of power in the present senate and who will dominate both branches of the next congress.

The Hoover administration's success in legislative matters in the next two years will depend in large measure upon his approval.

Norris was certain to declare in favor of additional farm relief legislation, final disposition of his Muscle Shoals bill, and measures for the relief of unemployment. He may join with Senator Borah (R) of Idaho, in favoring a special session of the new congress immediately after March 4, which the Hoover administration vigorously opposed.

The fate of the President's proposal for American adherence to the world court upon the revised root terms may also depend in large measure upon Norris' plans.

He favored "American adherence upon the senate's conditional terms a few years ago but he may not favor the revised terms.

The administration has far greater interest, though, in Norris' legislative plans than in his views toward the court. The President's advisers would like to know whether the insurgent leader would use the world court protocol as a means of forcing a special session of the new congress, if the President sends that document to the senate this winter. Any little filibuster, killing off a few of the imperative appropriation bills, would bring a special session in all probability and a filibuster against the court would bring the same result.

The policies favored by Norris will have tremendous weight with the Democrats too, since both parties will be looking ahead to 1932.

FIVE INJURED IN AUTO COLLISION

LANCASTER, O., Nov. 21.—Five persons today were suffering injuries received near Pleasantville, north of here last night, when two automobiles collided.

Mrs. Ernest F. Johnson, Newark, driver of one auto, was critically injured. She received a fractured skull. Attaches at Lancaster Hospital where she was taken, held little hope for her recovery.

Others injured are: Mrs. Mabel Allison of Columbus, and Harry Sturges, his wife, and Allen Sturges, all of Granville.

Walter Scribner, Columbus real estate dealer, driver of the other automobile, escaped injuries.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—That Mrs. Ruth Owen Briggs, divorced wife of the late Clara Briggs, cartoonist, is now Mrs. Joseph T. Trotter of Minneapolis, was revealed today when a court order was filed making her guardian ad litem for her daughter, Ruth Clara Briggs. Trotter was formerly a resident of New York.

ENTHUSIASM MARKS CAMPAIGN DINNER; PICKREL IS HEARD

Inspires Workers; $1,000 Is Pledged As Drive Opens

Insisting that "sacrifice" must be the keynote of the current campaign, William G. Pickrel, Dayton, lieutenant governor-elect of Ohio, principal speaker at a community dinner-meeting at the Elks' Club Thursday night which formally launched Xenia's third annual Community Fund drive, issued a ringing appeal to the people of Xenia to lay a golden sacrifice on the altar of need and distress.

Solicitation of funds from Xenia residents was begun in earnest by the army of nearly 100 volunteer workers Friday morning.

Wishing Xenia success in its crisis, the prominent Daytonian, himself a former general chairman of one of that city's recent and most successful chest drives, declared that the difference between a "live" town and a "dead" town is not its geographical location or its industrial situation, but is whether a representative group of its citizens is willing to give a portion of its time, energy, ability and money to help some of those fellow townspeople who are unable to help themselves.

"Ten years ago," the speaker declared, "the Community Chest was unknown. Today it is sweeping the country like wildfire. Its purpose is fundamentally sound. One hundred million Americans can't be wrong."

In contrast to the old system under which two-thirds of the money collected for charitable purposes was wasted, today practically every nickel contributed goes exactly where you want it to go. You want your money to do two things—leave a family better off than when it received it and also you desire to aid this or that particular family. The second object is of secondary importance.

What is more important is not only to tide a particular family over a temporary financial crisis but also to build it up into a self-sustaining unit not dependent upon charity. In other words constructive relief.

"You must not stop with relief work. You must go into character-building work. As the twig is inclined so the tree will grow. The country has been stunned by the present unfortunate economic situation in which unemployment is the leading factor but

MENTION TWO FOR STATE POSITION

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 21.—Speculating upon the possibilities for appointment by Governor-elect George White as state superintendent of insurance, political observers here today drew the names of two dunkles, M. Ray Allison and S. P. Dunkle, both of Columbus.

Allison was the recent unsuccessful Democratic nominee for attorney general. He is a former assistant chief of the state division of securities. Dunkle was executive secretary in the governor's office under former Governor Vic Donahue.

Judge C. S. Younger, (R), of Celina, is the present state superintendent of insurance. His successor will be appointed soon after Governor-elect White takes office January 12. The post commands a salary of $5,000 a year.

NOVEMBER HOTTEST IN YEARS

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 21.—What is believed to be a new record for high temperatures in November, has been made in Ohio during the past few weeks.

It may be the "calm before the storm," as officials at the United States weather bureau here previously announced that the Buckeye state was due for one of the coldest winters in a decade or more.

The mercury will drop somewhat over the week-end, according to predictions, with light rains forecasted in western Ohio for the week-end. Cloudy weather prevailed in most sections of the state today.

The cold wave is still confined to the western side of the Mississippi. Snowfall was reported from the plains states yesterday.

The thermometers registered around 85 to 75 degrees yesterday and today.

BELASCO IMPROVED

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—David Belasco was somewhat better today but his condition was described by physicians as still serious. The noted theatrical producer is suffering from pneumonia.

He may join with Senator Borah (R) of Idaho, in favoring a special session of the new congress immediately after March 4, which the Hoover administration vigorously opposes.

The fate of the President's proposal for American adherence to the world court upon the revised root terms may also depend in large measure upon Norris' plans. He favored American adherence upon the Senate's conditional terms a year ago but he may not favor the revised terms.

The administration has far greater interest, though, in Norris' legislative plans than in his views toward the court. The President's advisers would like to know whether the insurgent leader would use the world court protocol as a means of forcing a special session of the new congress, if the President sends that document to the senate this winter. Any little filibuster, killing off a few of the imperative appropriation bills, would bring a special session in all probability and a filibuster against the world court would bring the same result.

The policies favored by Norris will have tremendous weight with the Democrats too, since both parties will be looking ahead to 1932.

FIVE INJURED IN AUTO COLLISION

LANCASTER, O., Nov. 21.—Five persons today were suffering from injuries received near Pleasantville, north of here last night, when two automobiles collided.

Mrs. Ernest F. Johnson, Newark, driver of one auto, was critically injured. She received a fractured skull. Attached at Lancaster Hospital where she was taken, held little hope for her recovery.

Others injured are: Mrs. Mabel Allison of Columbus, and Harry Sturgess, his wife, and Allen Sturgess, all of Granville.

Walter Scribner, Columbus real estate dealer, driver of the other automobile, escaped injuries.

WIDOW IS MARRIED

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—That Mrs. Ruth Owen Briggs, divorced wife of the late Clarence Briggs, cartoonist, is now Mrs. Joseph T. Trotter of Minneapolis, was revealed today when a court order was filed making her guardian ad litem for her daughter, Ruth Clare Briggs. Trotter was formerly a resident of New York.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—David Belasco was somewhat better today but his condition was described by physicians as still serious. The noted theatrical producer is suffering from pneumonia.

ENTHUSIASM MARKS CAMPAIGN DINNER; PICKREL IS HEARD

Inspires Workers; $1,000 Is Pledged As Drive Opens

Insisting that "sacrifice" must be the keynote of the current campaign, William G. Pickrel, Dayton, lieutenant governor-elect of Ohio, principal speaker at a community dinner-meeting at the Elks' Club Thursday night which formally launched Xenia's third annual Community Fund drive, issued a ringing appeal to the people of Xenia to lay a golden sacrifice on the altar of need and distress.

Solicitation of funds from Xenia residents was begun in earnest by the army of nearly 100 volunteer workers Friday morning.

Wishing Xenia success in its crisis, the prominent Daytonian, himself a former general chairman of one of that city's recent and most successful chest drives, declared that the difference between a "live" town and a "dead" town is not its geographical location or its industrial situation, but is whether a representative group of its citizens is willing to give a portion of its time, energy, ability and money to help some of those fellow townspeople who are unable to help themselves.

"Ten years ago," the speaker declared, "the Community Chest was unknown. Today it is sweeping the country like wildfire. Its purpose is fundamentally sound. One hundred million Americans can't be wrong."

In contrast to the old system under which two-thirds of the money collected for charitable purposes was wasted, today practically every nickel contributed goes exactly where you want it to go. You want your money to do two things—leave a family better off than when it received it, and also you desire to aid this or that particular family. The second object is of secondary importance.

What is more important is not only to tide a particular family over a temporary financial crisis but also to build it up into a self-sustaining unit not dependent upon charity. In other words constructive relief.

"You must not stop with relief work. You must go into character-building work. As the twig is inclined so the tree will grow. The country has been stunned by the present unfortunate economic situation in which unemployment is the leading factor but

MENTION TWO FOR STATE POSITION

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 21.—Speculating upon the possibilities for appointment by Governor-elect George White as state superintendent of insurance, political observers here today drew the names of two attorneys, M. Ray Allison and S. P. Dunkle, both of Columbus.

Allison was the recent unsuccessful Democratic nominee for attorney general. He is a former chief of the state division of securities. Dunkle was executive secretary in the governor's office under former Governor Vic Donahey.

Judge C. S. Younger, (R), of Celina, is the present state superintendent of insurance. His successor will be appointed soon after Governor-elect White takes office January 12. The post commands a salary of $5,000 a year.

NOVEMBER HOTTEST IN YEARS

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 21.—What is believed to be a new record for high temperatures in November, has been made in Ohio during the past few weeks.

It may be the "craze before the storm," as officials at the United States weather bureau here previously announced that the Buckeye state was due for one of the coldest winters in a decade or more.

The mercury will drop somewhat over the week-end, according to predictions, with light rains forecasted in western Ohio for the week-end.

Cloudy weather prevailed in most sections of the state today.

The cold wave is still confined to the western side of the Mississippi. Snowfall was reported from the plains states yesterday.

The thermometers registered around 65 to 75 degrees yesterday and today.

CITY CONSIDERING PLANS FOR SURVEY OF ELECTRIC PLANT

Propositions of two civil engineering companies with a view of making a complete survey of the physical property of The Dayton Power and Light Co. used to distribute electric current within the corporation limits of Xenia and placing a valuation on the company's Xenia distribution system were submitted to City Commission at its recess meeting Thursday night.

Commission appointed a committee composed of City Manager M. C. Smith and Commissioners I. S. Dines and H. L. Binder to investigate the merits of the two proposals for preliminary surveys and any other propositions which may be submitted and make a report of its findings at the earliest possible moment.

The two proposals under consideration are those received from George Champe, Toledo, O., civil engineer, and the Burns and McDonnell Engineering Co., of Kansas City, Mo., and Los Angeles, Calif.

Commission at a recent meeting authorized a survey of the D. P. and L. Co. Xenia distribution system as the initial step in a plan considering the advisability of condemning and taking over the present lines of the Dayton company or whether it would be more advantageous for the city to erect its own distribution system.

ORGANIZE TWO NEW CHOIRS AT CHURCH; TO BE HEARD SUNDAY

A junior choir and a high school choir have been organized at the First U. P. Church, under the direction of Miss Mary Keeley, minister of music, and will make their first appearance at the morning services at the church Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock. Miss Keeley is affiliated with the Westminster Choir School of Ithaca, N. Y.

The complete musical program for Sunday morning is as follows: Organ prelude—Largo from the "New World Symphony"—Dvorak, Miss Marjorie Street.

Processional—Psalm 67. Junior, high school and adult choirs. Anthems: "We Gather Together," Traditional, the three choirs. "List to the Lark"—Dickinson, Junior and high school choir. "Triumph, Thanksgiving"—Rachmaninoff, adult choir.

Organ Offertory—"The Swan"—Saint-Saens. Postlude—"Thanksgiving"—Hosmer, Miss Street.

CAUTION URGED IN EATING RABBITS

The Ohio department of health is issuing precautions against tularemia, or rabbit fever, that should be taken at this time of the year, during the period of rabbit hunting season. There is not so much danger in contracting the disease from eating rabbits as there is in handling them.

To be safe from tularemia it is best to never put your unprotected hands inside a wild rabbit and to always wear rubber gloves when handling them. The rabbit should be thoroughly cooked; so well cooked that there is no red meat or red juice near the bone. At least one per cent of the rabbits are infected and to be assured of safety a hunter should not take home a wild rabbit that he shoots in the field if it seems sickly. It is best to bury such rabbits.

OVERLOOKED RENT

When a bailiff and four aides went to the Chicago apartment of Harry K. Curtis, below, son of Vice President Curtis, to move the furniture out on the sidewalk because of alleged non-payment of rent, Mrs. Curtis, top, phoned her husband visiting his father in Washington, and her husband then sent the required $400. Mrs. Curtis declared she believed her husband did not know the rent was overdue.

ENTHUSIASM MARKS CAMPAIGN DINNER; PICKREL IS HEARD

with all this talk of hard times this should be the easiest year the Community Chest has ever known to raise money. Chest campaigns are going over the top everywhere this year as people are educated to the fact this of all years is the one in which to give cheerfully. "Many families in your city are going to be dependent upon charity for food, shelter and heat this winter. The poor and suffering are not responsible for what has happened. They cannot wait for prosperity to arrive. You must not fail them in this campaign. You who have your positions, your jobs should be so thankful that you can show your appreciation by giving to help others less fortunate."

"Your workers should not hesitate to ask everyone for a donation. Don't take no for an answer. In Dayton an average of nearly one person in every three contributes to our drives. Why shouldn't it be the same way here? You solicitors do not have to apologize to anybody. Point out to the people the success of other drives this year, the need for money and the purpose of the campaign. All your efforts are united to fight a common enemy, to solve a common problem. You will be out there not to make a penny of personal profit but to fight someone else's battles. If your drive is successful your town will be a sweeter, a happier place to live in."

Edwin Galloway, chairman of the drive here last year, presided at the meeting, attended by about seventy-five campaign workers and others who paid for their own meals.

T. H. Zell, present drive chairman who also headed the first campaign two years ago, announced that campaign preliminaries have been completed and the decks cleared for the opening of the drive for $10,000. "The success or failure of the campaign is now in the hands of the contributing public," he said, urging solicitors to exercise salesmanship ability and "sell" the chest idea to prospective contributors. "You must have faith in the chest plan and also faith in yourselves if the drive is to be a success," he asserted.

Chairman Zell also revealed that the special gifts committee, which got into the field ahead of time, has already reported gifts amounting to nearly $1,000, obtained from the larger contributors, and this announcement was hailed with delight in the belief it presages the drive's ultimate success. St. Agnes Guild of Christ Episcopal Church, with an unsolicited donation of $5 Wednesday, made the first contribution to the fund.

The after-dinner meeting was opened by the invocation delivered by the Rev. A. H. Beardsley, pastor of Trinity M. E. Church. The chairman also introduced Fred Lang, chairman of the chest executive committee, who explained the process of chest organization this year. Dr. A. C. Messenger introduced Mr. Pickrel as the speaker.

less symptomatic of the Soviet situation.

One is the recent indictment returned by the Soviet attorney general, N. V. Krikenko, against eight prominent Soviet technical directors, which alleged the existence of an international conspiracy to undermine the Bolshevik regime which called for the eventual invasion of Russia by European armies and the apportionment of her natural resources between France, Britain, Poland and Roumania.

Some commentators have characterized this indictment an attempt to foist upon European industrialists and politicians blame for breakdown of the "five year plan."

Another is the arrest of Serge Ivanovitch Sirtzov, premier of Greater Russia, on charges of a conspiracy against Stalin.

Thirdly is the report of a "clean up" in the army. A number of officers suspected of anti-Stalin tendencies were reported transferred to the "sticks," while some officers of the artillery brigade in Moscow were arrested on suspicion of an anti-Stalin conspiracy.

There also has been reported the arrest of several members of the revolutionary military council, which is the Soviet general staff, but this is discounted.

The most recent report to reach here emanated from Kisa, stating two battalions of troops in a garrison at Moscow had mutinied because of lack of food. The rumor said a number of officers had been shot by the mutineers.

"Fabricated news," declared Soviet officials, "always travels faster than denials."

B. P. W. Club Hears Talk On China And Japan

IMPRESSIONS he received of China and Japan when he visited those countries this summer were vividly portrayed to members of the Xenia Business and Professional Women's Club by Mr. M. M. Goldberg, Dayton, at the November meeting of the club at Central High School Thursday evening.

"Japan has changed in the past thirty years from its eastern ways to western ways, due to the fact many of its students have studied abroad, while China has not progressed so rapidly," said Mr. Goldberg. He described his visit to a Chinese temple, his attendance at a Chinese banquet at which from sixteen to thirty-two courses were served and also a Japanese banquet. A description of a visit to a Japanese theater was interestingly told by Mr. Goldberg. The Japanese actors speak no lines but convey their meaning entirely by pantomime, while the story is told in song by a chorus. Mr. Goldberg displayed many Chinese and Japanese articles to further illustrate the impressions he received of those countries.

Following Mr. Goldberg's talk dinner was served the club women by girls of the home economics class of the high school. Later the regular business meeting was held and it was decided that members bring gifts for either girls of the Industrial School at Delaware or for wards of the Greene County Children's Home to the next meeting, which will be the annual Christmas party of the club. It was also decided that a dinner will be given for needy girls of the city some time after Christmas, the date to be decided upon later. Members of the club will sponsor another benefit card party at the home of Mrs. Henryetta Logan Shultz, E. Second St., Friday evening, December 5.

Hostesses for Thursday evening's meeting were Mrs. Agnes Hurley, Mrs. Winifred Armstrong, Mrs. Mary Allen, Mrs. Laura Alexander, Mrs. Ruth Fulkerson, and Miss Letitia Dillencourt.

The Home Guards and King's Heralds of the First M. E. Church will meet Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the basement of the church. All children of the church are invited to attend.

BRIDE-ELECT IS HONOURED WEDNESDAY.

Miss Myrtle Bickett, near Xenia, whose marriage to John H. Peterson, near New Burlington, will be solemnized the latter part of this month, was honored at a miscellaneous "shower" given by Mrs. Paul Peterson and Miss Aurora Peterson at the home of the former, near Zoar, Wednesday afternoon.

Sixty guests were present and several contests were enjoyed during the afternoon. Miss Bickett was presented an array of lovely gifts. Later a refreshment course was served by the hostesses.

CLUB MEMBERS AND FAMILIES ENTERTAINED.

Members of the Obedient Thimble Club and their families were entertained Thursday evening at an oyster supper at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Harner, Lower Bellbrook Pike. Forty-five persons attended the supper which was followed by a short business meeting of the club. Later a social time was enjoyed.

Mrs. Harner was assisted in the evening's hospitalities by Mrs. Ana Price, Mrs. Ava Moore, Mrs. Geo. King and Mrs. Mary Shaffer.

WOMEN HOLD SEWING PARTY THURSDAY

A group of women met at the home of Mrs. W. J. Kennedy, N. King St., Thursday and sewed for the benefit of the P. T. A. of McKinley School. A covered dish luncheon was served at noon. Those present were: Mrs. J. T. Hibbert, Mrs. Foster Clemmer, Mrs. Frank Johnson, Mrs. O. J. Lowe, Mrs. C. E. Wilkin, Mrs. A. V. Miller and Mrs. Kennedy.

Members of the McGervey Bible Class of Trinity M. E. Church will meet at the home of Mrs. Sherwin Spahr, Hill St., Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock. A short playlet will be presented by several of the members.

Church services at the Old Town M. E. Church will be held Sunday morning at 9:15 o'clock, in charge of the pastor, the Rev. G. M. McNeilly. Sunday School services will follow at 10 a. m.

May Quit Farm Board

Washington looks for the early resignation of at least three members of the federal farm board. Chairman Alexander Legge of Chicago, top, desires to return to the International Harvester Co. C. C. Teague, center, fruit member from California, probably will return to his post as president of the California Fruit Growers' Exchange, in July, 1931, and Samuel R. McKelvie, below, of Nebraska, wheat member, has seen wheat prices steadily decline, despite his efforts, to the lowest mark in 30 years.

MODERN KITCHENWARE CHARMINGLY INDIVIDUALISTIC AND COLORFUL

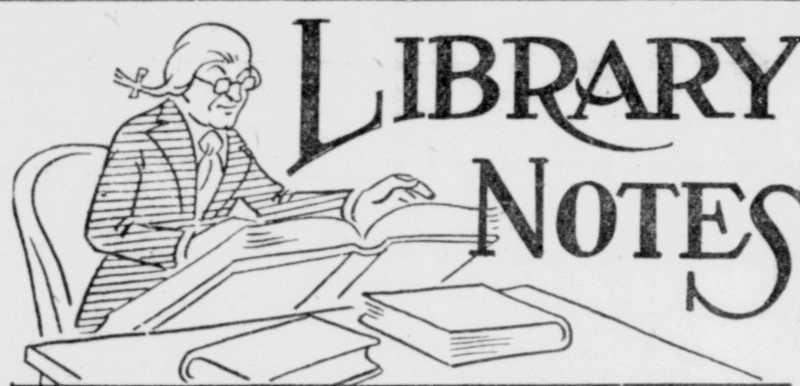

The modern bride no longer centers her decorative skill on the rooms her guests see. Her kitchen color scheme is as carefully thought out and carried through as the most ornamental room in her house. Pictured is some of the new kitchenware which may be chosen to make lovely the housewife's workshop. Left, bright red canisters, box and tray in gay hunting scenes; upper right, an array of china pitchers in graduated sizes with designs in light and dark brown on yellow background. The indented handles are new features. Below, kitchen china in pink and yellow, consisting of cake platter, knife, crock and bowl.

RETURNS AFTER 34-YEAR ABSENCE

Edward Rush, retired business man of Baltimore, Md., returned to his family in Lynn, Mass., after an absence of over 34 years. He is shown above with Mrs. Rush, the wife he left many years ago and who has worked in a local laundry for the past 27 years to keep her family together. Rush returned like an adventurer of old, loaded down with costly presents for his family. The couple have two children who are both married now.

Book Week has meant so much to the 4th, 5th and 6th grade children at McKinley School that there are now on display at the County Library some 50 or more Book Week posters made by these same youngsters. Some show real artistic ability; all show a feeling for books and the joys a good library offers to boys and girls.

On one of the tables in the adult reading room there is another display—this time of Indian material.

Every item in the collection was inspired by the reading of books about Indians. The display includes an Indian pueblo, Indian rugs (woven ones), pottery and an Indian doll made of a potato, feathers and a few other odds and ends. The display is interesting in itself of course, but from the standpoint of a bookish person it is even more interesting as showing how diversified may become the interests of the child who reads.

Four persons were injured, two women perhaps seriously, when a sedan driven by F. E. Francisco, 18, Canal Winchester, O., skidded and upset in a shallow ditch on the Cincinnati Pike, five miles south of Springfield Valley, at 8:30 a. m. Friday.

The injured persons, who were brought to Espey Hospital, by a passing motorist are: Mrs. H. R. Denyes, London, O., suffering from two fractured vertebrae in the neck and severe bruises. Mrs. Roy Gorham, 35, West Jefferson, O., injured hip, possible vertebrae fracture in the neck and strained back. Lester Coberly, 18, West Jefferson, O., driver, and Francisco, the driver, husbands of Mrs. Denyes and Mrs. Gorham are Chevrolet dealers in their respective cities and Francisco is a nephew of the women. They were enroute to Cincinnati with the intention of getting three new Chevrolet cars and driving them back to Gorham's agency at West Jefferson when the accident occurred.

Francisco told hospital attaches that he was driving at a moderate rate of speed but that it had begun to rain and the machine suddenly skidded, got out of control and left the highway, turning over on its side in a shallow ditch.

SIX BANKS CLOSED

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 21.—Six southern Indiana banks, with millions of dollars of assets, were closed today as the result of recent failures of large banks in Louisville, Ky.

NOTICE

Notice is hereby given to any and all banks situate within the County of Greene, State of Ohio, that competitive bids will be received by the undersigned Treasurer of the City of Xenia, Ohio, for interest upon public funds of the City coming into the hands of the Treasurer. Said bids shall be for a period of one year and from year to year thereafter at the option of the interested parties. Said bids must be sealed and marked, "Bids for Interest on Deposits," and shall be filed with the City Treasurer not later than twelve o'clock noon on the 1st day of December, 1930.

WITNESS my hand this 12th day of November, 1930.
WILLIAM B. FRAVER,
2t; 11—14-21. Treasurer.

THREE HUNDRED AT LIVESTOCK DAY AT CEDARVILLE YARDS

Approximately 300 livestock producers of Fayette, Madison, Clinton, Clark, Montgomery, Warren, Pickaway, Franklin and Greene Counties attended "Livestock Day" at Cedarville Thursday afternoon. The men met at the livestock yards in Cedarville, recently built there by the Pennsylvania Railroad.

During the program short talks were given by D. C. Rector, president of the Pittsburgh Producers' Commission Association; J. R. Alliger, secretary of the Ohio

Livestock Association, Columbus; H. L. Evans, of the National Order Buying Co.; Russell East, agricultural agent of the Pennsylvania Railroad; R. Q. Smith, manager of the Cincinnati Producers' Association; J. W. Wulch, swine specialist of Ohio State University; N. C. Claiborne and C. M. Stevens, salesmen from the Pittsburgh stock market.

An interesting feature was a grading demonstration given by men from the Pittsburgh market. Two hundred and twenty-seven men entered a guessing contest, in which the weight of a pen of hogs was guessed. Prizes were awarded as follows: first, Frank Teegarden, Pickaway County; second, Carl Ross, Sabina and third, Harry Shade, Osborn.

JAIL PRISONER IS REMOVED TO PRISON AS PAROLE VIOLATOR

Lester Rhinisperger, 22, Goes, has been transferred from the county jail, where he has been serving out a fine of $100 and costs and a sixty-day sentence, to the Mansfield state reformatory, where he will serve concurrently two old sentences of from one to twenty years each, imposed in Common Pleas Court April 6, 1928.

Rhinisperger was arrested at the home of his mother-in-law in Xenia last September 22 on a charge of carrying concealed weapons after he was said to have threatened to kill his estranged wife, Doris, and her mother.

Rhinisperger's wife had previously instituted suit for divorce and the filing of the separation action was thought to have infuriated the husband, who sought to retaliate after his release from jail, where he had been serving out a fine of $25 and costs for assaulting his wife.

Rhinisperger, two and a half years ago, was given two sentences of from one to twenty years each in the Mansfield reformatory on charges operating autos without the consent of owners, but the sentences were suspended at the time and he was paroled from custody.

Upon learning recently that Rhinisperger was incarcerated in jail again, Common Pleas Judge R. L. Gowdy ordered his parole revoked and directed that he be removed to the reformatory as a parole violator to serve out the sentences originally imposed by him.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

MIXED FEELINGS

A person anxious for the security of the country must read with rather mixed feelings the announcement of reductions in "virtually all ground branches of the army to allow the air corps to increase its personnel by 1,248 men."

The new attention and consideration given the air corps is all to the good. The announcement of a definite increase in the personnel of that branch may be received as an indication that to some extent, progress is triumphing over the hide bound conservatism and hostility of the old "ground men" among the military heads, who have persisted in viewing the flying branch with jealous eye, and at times have been almost persecutory in their attitude toward it.

But with the army as a whole far below the minimum of safety set for a skeletonized peace force by experienced and competent experts, it is pitiful, if not actually tragic, to find that the ordnance, engineering, field artillery and cavalry branches are to be reduced in order to make a modest advance in aerial defense. Considering the size of the United States and the size of the army, such a policy is picayunish and stupid.

POLITICAL PESSIMISM

Millions of voters do not vote at elections, and they failed to appear at the polls November 4, because so many of these people feel it is not worth their while to bother about politics. They say there is an enormous amount of graft and corruption, but they will tolerate many wrong things, rather than sacrifice any of their valuable time to improving them.

That is a selfish way to look at things, and it shows poor judgment. If we have that spirit indefinitely, public affairs may become so rotten that our government may not prove permanent. If so, these cynical people will wish they had given more attention to political issues.

Politics, however, is not so bad as these pessimists think. There are plenty of honest people in the political game. They should be given support and encouragement.

There are two principal sorts of critics of the times. There are those that criticize because they see evils to be remedied and want to warn or help; and those that criticize to be fashionable or make some money. The latter sort are by far the more numerous.

Some doubt may exist as to whether rubbing limberger cheese on the doorhandle of a public eating place is punishable under the law; but there is no doubt at all that filling such places with the fumes of bad 5-cent cigars ought to be.

South America has had its recurrence of revolutionists, but on the whole, the symptoms have been mild, and perhaps the continent is establishing an immunity.

Conditions may be bad in this country; but apparently they will have to be many times worse before the Communist party event gets an "also ran" at the polls.

YOU'VE GOT AN EQUITY!

Perhaps you've been buying a house. You didn't pay very much down. You didn't HAVE very much, but you wanted a home of your own that you could "fix up," that belonged to YOU. A place for children to grow in, where you could make a garden if you wanted one. So you bought a house and moved in.

You thought you'd NEVER get it paid for. Each month you drew a check and sent it to the bank. And if you stopped to figure it out, you realized that most of that check was for interest on what you owed. . . . There are taxes, too. And if the roof leaks a little and stains the ceiling, you can't call up the landlord and tell him you want it repaired. You own the house, even though all you really possess is your Equity.

But that equity is precious. It gives you the right to say My House. You are not renting, you are owning. . . . Smart people can sit down before you with a pencil and a bit of paper and prove to you that it's cheaper to pay rent than to own, and convince you that you're foolish. But what if they can't? You have a feeling about that house that rent receipts can't give you. Maybe that house IS depreciating in market value with the years, maybe you'll "never get your money out of it"—as the smart fellow says—but it has gained in value with those years. Your Equity has grown, and soon you will own that home of yours.

Houses aren't the only things you can build up an Equity in. Lives are like Houses. When you're young you haven't much of an equity in your life. You are clever, you are active, you are ambitious. You have friends, but you have tested neither their friendship for you nor yours for them. You are able, but your Character hasn't been fully tried. You haven't lived with yourself long enough to know just what you really are. Your Equity is very small. You don't even know you have one. And after a while you become so busy, so many claims, so many responsibilities pile up around you that you doubt whether your life belongs to you at all.

But your Equity grows. You suffer and you bear your grief. You meet as many of those claims as you can. You find yourself able to do the most important of those responsibilities. You test a few of your Opinions and learn that some of them are Truths. . . . And whenever you test an opinion and discover a truth or examine a Talent and prove it is a Power, you add to your Equity. That Equity grows and you become a Man or a Woman. You join up with humanity and win a place among People—and the bigger your equity the stronger you grow, until at last even Death can't take away what you have won from Life.

You have built up an Equity and you are proud of it.

THE QUESTION BOX

—Central Press Wash Bureau—

Answers to questions on information and fact can be obtained by writing to Central Press Bureau, 1435 East Twelfth street, Cleveland, O., and enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope. No answers will be given to marital, medical or legal questions, nor will the estimated value of old coins be given.

What are some of the facts concerning the life of the present pope of the Roman Catholic church? The Supreme Pontiff of the Roman Catholic church, Pius XI, Achille Ratti, was born at Desio, Italy, May 31, 1857. He was made archbishop of Milan in April, 1921, cardinal June 13, 1921, and elected pope, as successor of Benedict XV, and crowned February 12, 1922. The pontiff is, in orders, a bishop. His ecclesiastical title is: His Holiness, the Pope; Bishop of Rome and Vicar of Jesus Christ; Successor of St. Peter, Prince of the Apostles; Supreme Pontiff of the Universal Church; Patriarch of the West; Primate of Italy; Archbishop-op and Metropolitan of the Roman Province; and Sovereign of the Temporal Dominions of the Holy Roman Church.

ELEVATED

Where was the first elevated or "L" road in New York City? The first elevated road in Manhattan was on Greenwich street between Battery place and Cortlandt street. A trial train was run on Friday, July 3, 1868.

ALASKA

What was the population of Alaska in 1920? What is the population according to the 1930 census? In 1920 Alaska had a population of 55,036 and according to the 1930 census the population is 59,000.

UNCLE SAM

What is the origin of the term "Uncle Sam"? Uncle Sam, the familiar sobriquet of the United States government or people, is commonly stated to have originated at the outbreak of the war with England in 1812 when someone, asking what the letters U. S. marked on casks and barrels meant, was facetiously told that they referred to "Uncle Sam" or Samuel Wilson, an obscure citizen of Troy, N. Y., said to have been an inspector or contractor. This story had not been found earlier than 1842, when it was given in J. Frost's "Book of the Navy." No doubt Frost copied it from some newspaper, but the story lacks proof. The term Uncle Sam has yet to be traced earlier than 1813, when we read of Uncle Sam's men, meaning United States customs house officers, and are told that Uncle Sam, the now popular explanation of the United States, does not pay well. The term appears to have arisen somewhere in the north, perhaps in New York or Vermont.

MADAME SCHUMANN-HEINK

Where was Madame Schumann-Heink born and where is she living at present? Madame Schumann-Heink was born in Lieben, near Prague, Austria. Her present address is 80 Orange avenue, Coronado, Cal.

Bo-Broadway

—By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE—

NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.—The apple situation in Tammany Town is becoming acute. The saps who bought lemons in Wall Street and for whose benefit the apple-selling scheme was devised, are naturally the chief sufferers. Everywhere you turn today in New York you encounter an apple-seller. Push cart peddlers have stuck "unemployment signs" on their carts and gone in exclusively for apples. Bootleg methods are in vogue. Values are being tampered with. Fruiterers have cut their prices. Grocers have reduced canned apple sauce.

The whole thing is apple sauce. Those who have really benefited by the campaign are the apple-growers and the newspaper columnists.

A NEW LESSON

If it brought no other tangible benefit, the depression that Wall Street calls a "trauma recession" has taught us that Prosperity is a state of affairs and not a rate of advance and that there is nothing either healthy or permanent in the sort of "Prosperity" that forces people to consume what they have no need for and don't want.

RIGHT AGAIN

A friend of his, one "Di-mon" Toot Cappy" is a "two-faced guy," and The Demon has no use for two-faced guys. He met "Diamond Tooth" the other day on Second Avenue. "Diamond Tooth" saluted and The Demon cut him dead. "Well," said The Demon, "I'm tellin' de Missus about 'Di-mon' Toot" an' whattaya tink she says? She says: 'You hadn't oughta done dat,' she says. 'You mus' keep in good wid everybody.' "What did you say to that?" I inquired. "Me?" said The Demon. "I don't

ANOTHER HOPE CHEST!

BLIND MINNESOTA SOLON INVARIABLY RE-ELECTED BY NARROWEST MARGIN

—CHARLES P. STEWART—

WASHINGTON—Why Senator Thomas D. Schall of Minnesota is a desperate political fighter is not hard to understand. To survive at all, he has to be.

Minnesota is a uniquely doubtful state these times; doubtful three ways at once, which beats all records.

Senator Henrik Shipstead carried it on the Farmer-Labor ticket in 1928 by more than 322,000 majority. This year the Democrats were so strong that Einar Holmde, their candidate, was believed for several days to have won the other senatorship.

Running as a Republican, with so many Farmer-Laborites to right of him and so many Democrats to left of him, Schall obviously is up against cut-throat competition.

Even as a Republican the blind Minnesotan has an extraordinary kind of independence about him that infuriates many G. O. P. voters.

For example, at the last session of congress he enraged the regulars by opposing most of President Hoover's policies. Yet he cast his ballot to seat Senator-elect Vane of Pennsylvania, thereby antagonizing the progressives. It has been recalled of him lately that, as a war-time representative, he supported the Democratic Champ Clark for speaker, on the ground that the emergency entitled the Wilson administration to a friendly congressional organization.

A mercilessly hard hitter anyway, in addition to all these political heterodoxies, naturally he has enemies galore.

Indeed, opposition to him is so bitter that nearly every campaign he wages seems to be the end of his career. Early advances usually indicate that he actually is beaten.

Then, precisely, as his foes are beginning to rejoice, he gains ground on the strength of returns from the remotest precincts and finally squeaks through by a handful. Each election that he won during his decade among the representatives hung in the balance until the last minute.

In 1924 he took Senator Magnus Johnson's toga away from him by so narrow a margin that Magnus disputed the result and a particularly vicious contest ensued. Schall's speech, following his ultimate vindication, is remembered yet for the ferocity of the ugly accusations made against him.

Off the congressional floor, or the election platform the Minnesotan is an exceptionally mild, friendly senator, but he is of an angry temper as an orator—and his anger is terrific.

His handicap of blindness appears to make him only the fiercer. He gives no quarter and asks none—and neither does he receive it, for the fury of his attack is enough to make any individual say nuttin'. I Jes grabs me cap an' beats it. What's de use o' arguin' wid a woman? Nix on dat stuff. When I argues I wants t' sock—an' I can't sock de Missus. Right?"

against whom it is directed fight back in sheer terror.

The North Star lawmaker is much under middle size but deep chested and stocky.

He has a huge beak of a nose and a head of thick, bushy, black hair, which he wears rather long—not on his neck but overhanging his forehead somewhat in football fashion. His blindness does not show in his eyes, the electric shock that destroyed their vision having left them outwardly undiminished.

As a speaker his delivery is peculiar. His voice is exceedingly high, clear and piercing, with a strong suggestion of the warlike screech of a bagpipe.

As for Senator Schall, one may be delighted at his re-election (and he has enthusiastic friends as he has unrelenting enemies) or one may regard it as a calamity (a view one can hardly blame those who have skinned alive from entertaining), but no one who knows the senator's wife can resist offering up paeans of praise, on her account, that he triumphed.

Scarcely ever absent from his side throughout the entire period of his 15 years' service on Capitol hill, she has been his devoted helper in his every re-election battle hitherto. A hard fate decreed that she should be kept from him during his most recent campaign by the dangerous injury of their son in an automobile accident only a few days after his father's re-nomination.

Had her husband lost his seat by a mere few hundreds of votes, Mrs. Schall's conclusion, and probably rightly, could hardly have been other than that her inability to be with him was responsible for the misfortune—which really would have been a well-nigh intolerable tragedy to her.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

—By MRS. MARY MORTON—

MENU HINT
Macaroni Meat Loaf
Apple, Orange, Celery Salad
Creamed or Buttered Carrots
Pineapple and Cranberry Pie

Another menu that's a bit different. This amount of macaroni meat loaf serves four liberally.

Today's Recipes

Macaroni Meat Loaf—One-half pound macaroni, one cup bread crumbs, one tablespoon grated onion, one-half green pepper, chopped; three eggs; one teaspoon salt, one cup milk, three-fourths cup ground meat (raw). Cook macaroni until tender and drain. Combine macaroni with remaining ingredients. Pour into a buttered loaf pan. Bake in a moderate oven (325 degrees) for 30 to 15 minutes. Serve with creole sauce or brown gravy with currant jelly dissolved in it. Note: Salmon or tuna fish may be used in place of meat. Creole Sauce: Fry sliced onion in butter until brown; add one-half green pepper and one stalk celery, chopped. To this add small amount of tomatoes and cook until evaporated about one-third. Thicken with flour as for gravy.

Apple, Orange and Celery Salad: The orange is sectioned and arranged in lettuce with thin slices of apples. The celery stalk is sliced cross-wise in thin slices and arranged on the lettuce with two fruits. A whipped cream dressing tops the salad with a cube of bright red jelly for garnish.

Pineapple and Cranberry Pie—One cup cranberries, one cup crushed pineapple, one-half cup raisins, one teaspoon grated orange rind, two tablespoons flour, one cup sugar, butter. Line pie tin with pastry dough. Combine fruits in order named. Sprinkle a tablespoon of flour and small amount of sugar over the bottom and crust. Also dot over with butter. Turn fruit into shell. Sprinkle remaining sugar and flour over top again dot over with butter and cover with a top crust or with pastry strips arranged in lattice fashion. Bake in a hot oven 425 degrees Fahrenheit about 40 minutes.

Suggestions

Paint Can't Drip
Purchase a small 5 or 10-cent hollow rubber ball. Cut in half and slip it up on the handle of the brush just above the bristles (the other half may be used for another time). This prevents the paint from running up the handle and over the fingers.

Care of Stove
Wipe the stove with a cloth moistened with kerosene. This removes all grease and grime and keeps the stove like new. It is also a preventative of rust.

Hot Bath Is Stimulating

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.—

To many types of people hot baths are too depressant to be comfortable. These are people with catarrh and chronic bronchitis or other chronic respiratory diseases. Individual variation to the effects of the hot bath is greater than to the cold bath.

For most people, contrary to general belief, the hot bath is stimulating. It is therefore a good thing to start out the day with. Most people instinctively feel that a hot bath is a good thing to take before going to bed and will put them to sleep. Many years ago I became convinced of the opposite, and my experience and questioning has led me to the conclusion that a hot bath at bedtime helps most people awake and leads to a restless night. A cold or lukewarm bath is a much better sedative. Best of all is the wet pack.

The first effect of the hot bath is to contract the blood vessels of the skin. This phase soon passes, and a dilation occurs. This dilation is more prolonged in time than the secondary dilation following the cold bath. The time element in the use of water with the idea of its effect on health is no less important than the temperature of the water.

In hot weather, for cooling off, a lukewarm bath is much better than a cold bath. The secondary dilation of the skin blood vessels is so marked after a cold bath as to make the body feel warmer than before the bath. The European residents of tropical countries have discovered the lukewarm bath the most satisfactory.

The use of hot baths, or better, of hot electric light cabinet baths, for patients with kidney trouble has long been popular. The general theory is that the perspiration throws off the waste products which should be eliminated by the kidneys. Recent studies by Drs. Austin and Miller would indicate that the theory is more or less of a delusion. They studied the waste products in the blood before and after the sweat and found no change.

The Turkish bath should be indulged only by the strong and well. "Fleshly men of full habit" as the girls in "Patience" said of the English army officers.

Misprint. A misprint was made in the instructions in this column a few weeks ago as to the vitamins in milk. No serious consequence could have come from it, however, because the proper advice, which was to add orange juice to the baby's diet was given. The mistake consisted in calling the milk "D." The statement should have read that vitamin C is often destroyed in boiled or autoclaved milk. Artificially fed infants should therefore have vitamin C added to the diet in the form of orange juice. Vitamin D should also be added to the baby's diet in the form of cod liver oil. Several inquiries have come in about Vitamin B which is present in cow's milk in larger proportion than in mother's milk. It is also present in an artificial food called Vitavase. My apologies for the error.

Absolute Freedom Myth

—By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE—

Young people think they want freedom. "Wait until I'm my own boss," they say, implying that when that auspicious day dawns they will be happy and free of all restraint.

But 21 finds them just finishing college and starting out in business. No time to carry out any ideas of freedom they may have formed. "Got to buckle down to business for a time yet," they say. "Wait until I'm 45 or 50. Then I'll retire and be free."

Marriage and its responsibilities follow. They are happy and busy with plans for business and family, and by the time 45 or 50 has arrived they're usually in no position to retire, either because they have not been able to accumulate enough on which to live without work, or they are so interested in their work and have so many responsibilities in connection with it that they have forgotten all about their plan. And, as often as not, by that time they have found out that that freedom does not lie in doing just what one chooses, but in willingly and happily doing what happens to be your duty.

I just have finished reading a letter from a girl named Alice. It is a good letter, an interesting letter. Alice is 14. I thought she was much older until she said, when she revealed her age. She rebels against her mother's authority. She says:

"I'm not that I don't love my mother, because I do. It's only that I want her to stop treating me like a baby and let me be free. She has so many silly rules, like having no dates on school days, wearing low heels and short dresses, etc."

"I want to go out whenever and wherever and with anyone I like. Instead, I can only go out at the end of the week and then I must be home again by 10 o'clock, and if it happens to be a new friend they have to be inspected first before I can go. Don't you think that's all very silly? After all, I am 14 years old and can take care of myself."

"I am just tired trying to argue with my mother. It's no use. She always twists everything around so much that in the end I have to admit that she's right."

Gladys Glad Suggests Varied Diet

—By GLADYS GLAD—

"Dear Miss Glad: Thanks to the reducing instructions contained in your booklet on 'The New Figure,' I have succeeded in unbundling myself of 20 excess pounds. And I feel just about 20 years younger! However, I've been told that constipation sometimes causes an accumulation of unhealthy fat. I certainly don't wish to regain the weight I've lost. But I have a tendency to become constipated very easily. How can I keep my excretory system functioning regularly?"

"Mrs. Falerin."

To obtain more perfect evacuation, you must modify your diet, and you must strengthen the muscles of the excretory organs. Our modern diet contains too large an amount of the concentrated foods. Add bran and agar, greens and cereals to your daily menu, to supply bulk and roughage. Eat plenty of fresh vegetables, and plenty of the stringy, cooked kind, such as kale, broccoli, cabbage, beets tops and spinach. Eat plenty of fresh fruits. Take a glass of orange juice before breakfast every morning. And be sure to drink at least eight or 10 glasses of water every day. To strengthen the muscles of the excretory organs, the following exercise should be done every morning:

Stand about three feet away from a chair. Place your hands on the chair, and while in this position draw the muscles of the stomach and bowels in toward the spine. Do this for at least 10 minutes. Repeat the exercise, lying flat on the floor.

"Dear Miss Glad: My little daughter has acquired the nail-biting habit, and though I've tried punishing her, I can't seem to cure her of this practice. As she is not a nervous child, I cannot understand what caused her to begin to bite her nails. Can you suggest any cure?"

Nail biting is generally considered a nervous habit. However, children sometimes begin this habit in imitation of older people, or of their playmates. Also, this practice may result from roughness of the edges of the nails. If the edges of the nails are not kept smooth, the child is tempted to bite off the roughness and thus gradually make the practice habitual. If you keep a pair of gloves on your daughter's hand whenever possible, she will be unable to do any biting, and will gradually lose the habit. Again, you might apply a bit of tincture of aloes to her finger tips. This will also help to break her of the nail-biting practice. And I'm sure that if you keep her nails smooth and in good condition, if you make her proud of her nails, she'll not want to ruin their appearance by biting them!

"Dear Miss Glad: Do you know of any successful remedy for a mild peevish condition? I should be most grateful if you could prescribe a cure."

Saturate your hair and scalp with hot vinegar before you retire at night, and wrap a Turkish towel around your head. Of course, the vinegar should not be too hot enough to burn the scalp. Shampoo your hair the following morning, with a mild soap. Three or four such treatments should remedy the condition.

EDITOR'S NOTE: While it is impossible for Miss Glad to answer beauty questions by mail, she will be happy to send you her pamphlets on "The New Figure" and "Beauty Culture," if you will write her, care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed stamped envelope and 10 cents in coin for each copy of printing and mailing. Personal questions on beauty will be answered through Miss Glad's daily column.

ELEVATED

Where was the first elevated or "L" road in New York situated? The first elevated road in Manhattan was on Greenwich street between Battery place and Cortlandt street. A trial train was run on Friday, July 3, 1868.

ALASKA

What was the population of Alaska in 1920? What is the population according to the 1930 census? In 1920 Alaska had a population of 55,036 and according to the 1930 census the population is 59,000.

UNCLE SAM

What is the origin of the term "Uncle Sam"? Uncle Sam, the familiar sobriquet of the United States government or people, is commonly stated to have originated at the outbreak of the war with England in 1812 when someone, asking what the letters U. S. marked on casks and barrels meant, was facetiously told that they referred to "Uncle Sam" or Samuel Wilson, an obscure citizen of Troy, N. Y., said to have been an inspector or contractor. This story had not been found earlier than 1842, when it was given in J. Frost's "Book of the Navy." No doubt Frost copied it from some newspaper, but the story lacks proof. The term Uncle Sam has yet to be traced earlier than 1813, when we read of Uncle Sam's men, meaning United States customs house officers, and are told that "Uncle Sam, the now popular explication of the United States, does not pay well." The term appears to have arisen somewhere in the north, perhaps in New York or Vermont.

Bo-Broadway

—By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE—

NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.—The apple situation in Tammany Town is becoming acute. The saps who bought lemons in Wall Street and for whose benefit the apple-selling scheme was devised, are naturally the chief sufferers. Everywhere you turn today in New York you encounter an apple-seller. Pushcart peddlers have stuck "employment signs" on their carts and gone in exclusively for apples. Bootleg methods are in vogue. Values are being tampered with. Fruiteers have cut their prices. Grocers have reduced canned apple sauce.

The whole thing is apple sauce. Those who have really benefited by the campaign are the apple-growers and the newspaper columnists.

A NEW LESSON

If it brought no other tangible benefit, the depression that Wall Street calls a "tra. recession" has taught us that Prosperity is a state of affairs and not a rate of advance and that there is nothing either healthy or permanent in the sort of "Prosperity" that forces people to consume what they have no need for and don't want.

RIGHT AGAIN

An abortive attempt on the part of his wife to endow him with the elements of diplomacy was rehearsed by him for my benefit. A friend of his, one "Di-mon" Toot happy, is a "two-face guy," and the Demon has no use for two-faced guys.

He met "Diamond Tooth" the other day on Second Avenue. "Diamond Tooth" saluted and the Demon cut him dead. "Well," says The Demon, "I'm tellin' de Missus about 'Di-mon' Toot an' whataya 'ink she says? She says: 'You hadn't oughta done dat,' she says. 'You mus' keep in good w'id everybody.'" "What did you say to that?" I inquired. "Me?" said The Demon. "I don't

ANOTHER HOPE CHEST!

BLIND MINNESOTA SOLON INVARIABLY RE-ELECTED BY NARROWEST MARGIN

—CHARLES P. STEWART—

WASHINGTON—Why Senator Thomas D. Schall of Minnesota is a desperate political fighter is not hard to understand. To survive at all, he has to be.

Minnesota is a uniquely doubtful state these times; doubtful three ways at once, which beats all records. Senator Henrik Shipstead carried it on the Farmer-Labor ticket in 1928 by more than 322,000 majority. This year the Democrats were so strong that Einar Holmde, their candidate, was believed for several days to have won the other senatorship.

Running as a Republican, with so many Farmer-Laborites to right of him and so many Democrats to left of him, Schall obviously is up against cut-throat competition. Even as a Republican the blind Minnesotan has an extraordinary kind of independence about him that infuriates many G. O. P. voters.

For example, at the last session of congress he enraged the regulars by opposing most of President Hoover's policies. Yet he cast his ballot to seat Senator-elect Vard of Pennsylvania, thereby antagonizing the progressives. It has been recalled of him lately that, as a war-time representative, he supported the Democratic Champ Clark for speaker, on the ground that the emergency entitled the Wilson administration to a friendly congressional organization.

A mercilessly hard hitter anyway, in addition to all these political heterodoxies, naturally he has enemies galore. Indeed, opposition to him is so bitter that nearly every campaign he wages seems to be the end of his career. Early advices usually indicate that he actually is beaten. Then, precisely, as his foes are beginning to rejoice, he gains ground on the strength of returns from the remoter precincts and finally squeaks through by a handful.

Each election that he won during his decade among the representatives hung in the balance until the last minute. In 1924 he took Senator Magnus Johnson's toga away from him by so narrow a margin that Magnus disputed the result and a particularly vicious contest ensued. Schall's speech, following his ultimate vindication, is remembered yet for the ferocity of his exhortation of the authors of the ugly accusations made against him.

Off the congressional floor or the election platform the Minnesotan is an exceptionally mild, friendly senator, but he is of an angry temper as an orator—and his anger is terrific.

His handicap of blindness appears to make him only the fiercer. He gives no quarter and asks none—and neither does he receive it, for the fury of his attack is enough to make any individual say nuttin'. I Jos grabs me cap an' beats it. What's de use o' arguin' w'id a woman? Nix on dat stuff. When I argues I wants t' sock—an' I can't sock de Missus. Right?"

Peter's Adventures

—By Mrs. Florence Smith Vincent—

Peter lowered his spike and wiped the beads of perspiration from his forehead.

"I don't blame you for taking me for a spy, Digger. The evidence was all against me. It stands to reason that you wouldn't expect to meet anyone but a Black Ant in this secret passage. I am sorry you hurt yourself on the point of my spear, but I couldn't prevent you hurling yourself upon it. I warned you, you'll remember."

"Nine times out of ten, what I did would have been right!" declared Digger Ant, "but this time I was wrong, and I admit it. However, what's the use of worrying over what has past?"

"No use at all!" Busy spoke briskly. "Now that that's settled, be off about your business, both of you! Round up the young Queens, Digger, and hustle them to safety. Keep on where you were going. Boy, and if you see another scout give her the high sign before she has time to throw herself upon you."

"The high sign?" Peter was puzzled. "What is that?"

"The antennae held high above the head," replied Busy.

"That's so!" For a second Busy was worried. Then that worker ant brightened up.

"Then hold up your legs straight in the air! I guess you mean my hands." Busy had, but she wouldn't say so.

a few days after his father's renomination.

Had her husband lost his seat by a mere few hundreds of votes, Mrs. Schall's conclusion, and probably rightly, could hardly have been other than that her inability to be with him was responsible for the misfortune—which really would have been a well-nigh intolerable tragedy to her.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

—By MRS. MARY MORTON—

MENU HINT

Macaroni Meat Salad
Apple, Orange, Celery Salad
Creamed or Buttered Carrots
Pineapple and Cranberry Pie
Coffee

Another menu that's a bit different. This amount of macaroni meat loaf serves four liberally.

Today's Recipes

Macaroni Meat Loaf—One-half pound macaroni, one cup bread crumbs, one tablespoon grated onion, one-half green pepper, chopped; one tablespoon parsley, chopped; three eggs; one teaspoon salt, one cup milk, three-fourths cup ground meat (raw). Cook macaroni until tender and drain. Combine macaroni with remaining ingredients. Pour into a buttered loaf pan. Bake in a moderate oven (325 degrees) for 30 to 15 minutes. Serve with creole sauce or brown gravy with currant jelly dissolved in it. Note: Salmon or tuna fish may be used in place of meat. Creole Sauce: Fry sliced onion in butter until brown; add one-half green pepper and one stalk celery, chopped. To this add small can of tomatoes and cook until evaporated about one-third. Thicken with flour as for gravy.

Apple, Orange and Celery Salad: The orange is sectioned and arranged in lettuce with thin slices of apples. The celery stalk is sliced cross-wise in thin slices and arranged on the lettuce with two fruits. A whipped cream dressing tops the salad with a cube of bright red jelly for garnish.

Pineapple and Cranberry Pie—One cup cranberries, one cup crushed pineapple, one-half cup raisins, one teaspoon grated orange rind, two tablespoons flour, one cup sugar, butter. Line pie tin with pastry dough. Combine fruits in order named. Sprinkle a tablespoon of flour and small amount of sugar over the bottom crust. Also dot over with butter. Turn fruit into shell. Sprinkle remaining sugar and flour over top, again dot over with butter and cover with a top crust or with pastry strips arranged lattice fashion. Bake in a hot oven 425 degrees Fahrenheit about 40 minutes.

Suggestions

Paint Can's Drip—Purchase a small 5 or 10-cent hollow rubber ball. Cut in half and slip it up on the handle of the brush just above the bristles (the other half may be used for another time). This prevents the paint from running up the handle and over the fingers.

Care of Stove—Wipe the stove with a cloth moistened with kerosene. This removes all grease and grime and keeps the stove like new. It is also a preventative of rust.

Hot Bath Is Stimulating

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.—

To many types of people hot baths are too depressant to be comfortable. These are people with catarrh and chronic bronchitis or other chronic respiratory diseases. Individual variation to the effects of the hot bath is greater than to the cold bath.

For most people, contrary to general belief, the hot bath is stimulating. It is therefore a good thing to start out the day with. Most people instinctively feel that a hot bath is a good thing to take before going to bed and will put them to sleep. Many years ago I became convinced of the opposite, and my experience and questioning has led me to the conclusion that a hot bath at bedtime is a restless night. A cold or lukewarm bath is a much better sedative. Best of all is the wet pack.

The first effect of the hot bath is to contract the blood vessels of the skin. This phase soon passes, and a dilation occurs. This dilation is more prolonged in the case of the secondary dilation following the cold bath. The time element in the use of water with the idea of its effect on health is no less important than the temperature of the water.

In hot weather, for cooling off, a lukewarm bath is much better than a cold bath. The secondary dilation of the skin blood vessels is so marked after a cold bath as to make the body feel warmer than before the bath. The European residents of tropical climates have discovered the lukewarm bath the most satisfactory.

The Turkish bath should be indulged only by the strong and well. "Fleshly men of full habit" as the girls in "Patience" said of the English army officers.

Misprint. A misprint was made in the instructions in this column a few weeks ago as to the vitamins in milk. No serious consequences could have come from it, however, because the proper advice, which was to add orange juice to the baby's diet was given. The mistake consisted in calling the vitamin in orange juice vitamin "D." The statement should have read that vitamin C is often destroyed in boiled or autoclaved milk. Artificially fed infants should therefore have vitamin C added to the diet in the form of orange juice. Vitamin D should also be added to the baby's diet in the form of cod liver oil.

Several months have come in about Vitamin B which is present in cow's milk in larger proportion than in mother's milk. It is also present in an artificial food called Vitavose. My apologies for the error.

Absolute Freedom Myth

—By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE—

Young people think they want freedom. "Wait until I'm my own boss," they say, implying that when that auspicious day dawns they will be happy and free of all restraint.

But 21 finds them just finishing college and starting out in business. No time to carry out any ideal of freedom they may have formed. "Got to buckle down to business for a time yet," they say. "Wait until I'm 45 or 50. Then I'll retire and be free."

Marriage and its responsibilities follow. They are happy and busy with plans for business and family, and by the time 45 or 50 has arrived they're usually in no position to retire, either because they have been able to accumulate enough on which to live without work, or they are so interested in their work and have so many responsibilities in connection with that they have forgotten all about their plan. And, as often as not, by that time they have found out that real freedom does not lie in doing just what one chooses, but in willingly and happily doing what happens to be your duty.

I just have finished reading a letter from a girl named Alice. It is a good letter, an interesting letter. Alice is 14. I thought she was much older until the end, when she revealed her age. She rebels against her mother's authority. She says:

It's not that I don't love my mother, because I do. It's only that I want her to stop treating me like a baby and let me be free. She has so many silly rules, like having to take on school days, wearing low heels and short dresses, etc.

"I want to go out whenever and wherever and with anyone I like. Instead, I can only go out at the end of the week and then I must be home again by 10 o'clock, and if it happens to be a new friend they have to be inspected first before I can go. Don't you think that's all very silly? After all, I am 14 years old and can take care of myself."

"I am just tired trying to argue with my mother. It's no use. She always twists everything around so much that in the end I have to admit that she's right."

Just sit down and think out your mother's rules and tell me whether they are not the only ones a girl of your age should have made for her.

Why not make up your mind to play the game according to the rules? Do you know that girls of 17 and 18 write me that they are not allowed to go out with boys at all, and you really have a great deal of freedom, honest you have.

Gladys Glad Suggests Varied Diet

—By GLADYS GLAD—

"Dear Miss Glad: Thanks to the reducing instructions contained in your booklet 'The New Figure,' I have succeeded in unbundling myself of 20 excess pounds. And I feel just about 20 years younger! However, I've been told that constipation sometimes causes an accumulation of unhealthy fat. I certainly don't wish to regain the weight I've lost. But I have a tendency to become constipated very easily. How can I keep my excretory system functioning regularly?"

Mrs. Falerin: To obtain more perfect evacuation, you must modify your diet, and you must strengthen the muscles of the excretory organs. Our modern diet contains too large an amount of the concentrated foods. Add bran and agar, greens and cereal foods to your daily menu, to supply bulk and roughage. Eat plenty of fresh vegetables, and plenty of the stringy, cooked kind, such as kale, broccoli, cabbage, beet tops and spinach. Eat plenty of fresh fruits. Take a glass of orange juice before breakfast every morning. And be sure to drink at least eight or 10 glasses of water every day. To strengthen the muscles of the excretory organs, the following exercise should be done every morning:

Stand about three feet away from a chair. Place your hands on the chair, and while in this position draw the muscles of the stomach and bowels in toward the spine. Do this for at least 10 minutes. Repeat the exercise, lying flat on the floor.

Stand about three feet away from a chair. Place your hands on the chair, and while in this position draw the muscles of the stomach and bowels in toward the spine. Do this for at least 10 minutes. Repeat the exercise, lying flat on the floor.

"Dear Miss Glad: My little daughter has acquired the nail-biting habit, and though I've tried punishing her, I can't seem to cure her of this practice. As she is not a nervous child, I cannot understand what caused her to begin to bite her nails. Can you suggest any cure?"

Mrs. M. K. L.: Nail biting is generally considered a nervous habit. However, children sometimes begin this habit in imitation of older people, or of their playmates. Also, this practice may result from roughness of the edges of the nails. If the edges of the nails are not kept smooth, the child may attempt to bite off the roughness and thus gradually make the practice a habit. If you keep a pair of gloves on your daughter's hand whenever possible, she will be unable to do any biting, and will gradually lose the habit. Again, you might apply a bit of tincture of iodine to her finger tips. This will also help to break her of the nail-biting practice. And I'm sure that if you keep her nails smooth and in good condition, if you make her proud of her nails, she'll not want to ruin their appearance by biting them!

"Dear Miss Glad: Do you know of any successful remedy for a mild pediculosis condition? I should be most grateful if you could prescribe a cure. Genevieve." Saturate your hair and scalp with hot vinegar before you retire at night, and wrap a Turkish towel around your head. Of course, the vinegar should not be too hot enough to burn the scalp. Shampoo your hair the following morning, with a mild soap. Three or four such treatments should remedy the condition.

EDITOR'S NOTE: While it is impossible for Miss Glad to answer beauty questions by mail, she will be happy to send you her pamphlets on "The New Figure" and "Beauty Culture." If you will write her, care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope and 10 cents in coin, for each, to cover cost of printing and mailing. Personal questions on beauty will be answered through Miss Glad's daily column.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

FRAMED

by Phil

Instead of being staged in the afternoon as scheduled, the traditional Xenia-Springfield football classic will be played in the morning on Thanksgiving Day at Cox Athletic Field, the belated change in time having finally met with the joint approval of both high schools. The kickoff will be at 10 a. m.

The decision to stage the game in the forenoon was brought about by the pressure of public opinion, that is, local public opinion because Springfield had steadfastly held out against the proposed change in time.

The announcement was generally received with widespread enjoyment among local football fans many of whom desire to attend the annual Wilberforce-West Virginia State grid contest at Wilberforce in the afternoon.

Xenia Central High gridgers, who have experienced less difficulty in scoring than they have winning games this season, until lately, have scored seventy-six points against 126 for opposing eleven in eight games played to date. In only two contests—the Washington C. H. and Miamisburg games—have the Bucs been blanked. In contrast Xenia has been able to keep its own goal line uncrossed only once, that being the last game with the Home cadets.

Although outscored by opposing teams, eighty-four points to forty-four, the O. S. and S. O. Home football eleven managed to break even in eight games played during the current season, winning two games by one point and another by one touchdown. Here is the season's record of the Home, which has completed its season:

Home, 7; Sidney, 6.
Home, 0; Bath-Twp., 7.
Home, 7; O. S. S. D., (Columbus), 6.
Home, 0; London, 34.
Home, 23; Holy Angels (Sidney), 0.
Home, 0; Springfield (Seconds), 12.
Home, 7; Cedarville, 0.
Home, 0; Xenia Central, 10.

"Sixty-three high school girls, no foolin'," have turned out for basketball practice at Greenville High School this week. Because most of the schools in the Miami Valley League do not have girls' cage teams it has been difficult for Greenville lassies to book games, but to date Greenville's feminine team has scheduled games with Versailles, December 12; and Covington, December 19. After the Christmas holidays, an inter-class tournament will be arranged for girls playing basketball at Greenville. Later scholastic girls' basketball appears to be on the increase in the Class A schools.

BOWLING

After dropping the first game by the wide margin of 120 pins, the Red Wing Co. bowling team staged a comeback and won the next two in a Recreation League match with the Lang Chevrolet Co. Thursday night. Dan Jordan had a series of 562 for the winners and L. McCoy rolled 537 to top Langs. Box score:

CADETS LOSE STAR

Though Cy Letzelter, Army football back, has been dropped from the cadet grid squad because he has discovered that he was older than the age limit when he entered West Point academy, the youth will continue as a student. When he entered the academy Letzelter believed he was a year younger than he actually was.

BUCCANEERS OP TIMISTIC OVER PROSPECTS OF BEATING SIDNEY

Opportunity knocks for Xenia Central High School gridgers Saturday afternoon and the Buccaneers are primed for their annual friendly gridiron scuffle with Sidney High's eleven to be staged at Julia Lamb Memorial Field at Sidney.

Never has a Xenia football team beaten a Sidney eleven and this fact will be an added incentive for the Bucs to bring home the bacon Saturday afternoon. Despite the gloomy possibility that Birch Bell, quarterback, may not be able to play all the game and may not even start at all because of a broken thumb, Xenia gridgers are refusing to be disheartened and are grimly determined to win up their Miami Valley League schedule with a victory, which would inevitably be their third successive gridiron triumph if achieved.

The high school's thirty-piece band will also make the trip to Sidney through the generosity of a number of Xenia boosters who have volunteered the use of automobiles to furnish transportation. The following persons have offered machines to convey the band: Roy Spahr, H. U. Bell, Asa Price, City Manager M. C. Smith, Rev. H. B. Bogart, Mrs. V. W. Burke, O. B. Lang, who will not drive himself but will supply a car.

The autos transporting the band members will leave from in front of the high school at 11:30 o'clock Saturday morning and upon arriving at Sidney the motor cavalcade will stop two squares from the athletic field. The band will then form and make a grand entrance onto the football field.

"Terrible," say the anti-pointers, "nineteen victims of a foolish rule!"

"Swell," come back the proponents, "nineteen senseless titles avoided!"

Maybe they are both right.

Ye olde point-after-touchdown has been one of the football bones of contention for years, the cause of almost as much out-of-season debate as that other hardy perennial, the shift. And this year the p. a. t. wreaked much havoc to quite a number of football teams, the coaches of which are cost their outfits considerable glory.

The point-after-touchdown squabbles are divided into two distinct camps and both have good reasons for their stand.

Camp one harbors the anti-pointers who assert that the p. a. t. is not an actual part of the game, that it adds too much to the element of luck in football.

Camp two (the pro-pointers) declares that if a team wins by a successful try for point it deserves victory because it has definite superiority over the other eleven in that it scored a point when the losers couldn't, though given the same chance.

What may cause extra discussion of the point problem by the committee is the fact that this season two very important titles were lost through two teams failing to make the point goal. Purdue lost its chance to tie for the Western conference title by losing to Michigan, 14-13, and Southern California lost a chance to tie for the Pacific coast title by losing to Washington State, 7-6.

Both of these games being of the highest importance of any played this season, the damage or good, depending on what team you root for, that has been done this season by the point rule is naturally exaggerated.

In a check-up of more than 80 "major league" teams and all the games they have played it has been discovered that only 19 games out of an enormous total played by the 80 elevens resulted in victories through point after touchdown.

Alphabetically listed these games were:

California 7; St. Mary's 6.
Colorado 14; Colorado College 13.
Davidson 7; North Carolina 6.
Furman 14; Florida 13.
Georgetown 14; Michigan State 13.
Georgia 7; New York 6.
Georgia Tech 14; Auburn 12.
Haskell 13; Oklahoma A. and M. 12.
Michigan 14; Purdue 13.
Missouri 14; Drake 13.
Nebraska 13; Iowa State 12.
Pittsburgh 7; Carnegie Tech 6.
Purdue 7; Wisconsin 6.
Rice 13; Sam Houston 12.
South Carolina 7; Louisiana State 6.
South Carolina 14; Sewanee 13.

OHIO IN PATH OF COLD SPELL

By International News Service
Lying in the path of a winter storm which is sweeping eastward from the Rocky Mountain area, Ohio will probably be abruptly robbed of its prevailing Indian summer weather this week end and fall into the grip of wintry blasts, weather bureau officials predicted today.

Cloudiness covered most sections of the state today, presaging the onslaught of cold weather with its snow and sleet. And when the "cold spell" arrives this time, weather officials declared, it will come to say until next spring.

Weather officials deduced from their charts today that the coming cold snap will probably arrive late Saturday and toboggan temperatures to freezing marks.

N. Y. STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Selling of the left-overs from yesterday's closing reaction carried the market slightly lower in the first period today, but there was no great pressure on the favorite stocks and good recoveries were made in all sections of the list early in the second hour. A $50,000,000 decrease in broker's loans, firmness in the commodity markets, confident statements by business heads and good investment-buying of stocks were the principal factors helping along the recovery.

The market as a whole was quiet and dull, with speculative interest centered mostly in a small group of the industrials and specialties. Chrysler Motor sold above 20 in the resumption of the upward move which was abruptly halted in the last hour yesterday. General Motors forged ahead to 36 3/4 for a fractional gain, and Electric Auto-Lite featured the accessories with a 3 1/4 point jump to 55 1/4.

Instead of being staged in the afternoon as scheduled, the traditional Xenia-Springfield football classic will be played in the morning on Thanksgiving Day at Cox Athletic Field, the belated change in time having finally met with the joint approval of both high schools. The kickoff will be at 10 a. m.

The decision to stage the game in the forenoon was brought about by the pressure of public opinion, that is, local public opinion because Springfield had steadfastly held out against the proposed change in time.

The announcement was generally received with widespread enjoyment among local football fans many of whom desire to attend the annual Wilberforce-West Virginia State grid contest at Wilberforce in the afternoon.

Xenia Central High gridgers, who have experienced less difficulty in scoring than they have winning games this season, until lately, have scored seventy-six points against 126 for opposing eleven in eight games played to date. In only two contests—the Washington C. H. and Miamisburg games—have the Bucs been blanked. In contrast Xenia has been able to keep its own goal line uncrossed only once, that being the last game with the Home cadets.

Although outscored by opposing teams, eighty-four points to forty-four, the O. S. and S. O. Home football eleven managed to break even in eight games played during the current season, winning two games by one point and another by one touchdown. Here is the season's record of the Home, which has completed its season:

Home, 7; Sidney, 6.
Home, 0; Bath-Twp., 7.
Home, 7; O. S. S. D. (Columbus), 6.
Home, 0; London, 34.
Home, 23; Holy Angels (Sidney), 0.
Home, 0; Springfield (Seconds), 12.
Home, 7; Cedarville, 0.
Home, 0; Xenia Central, 10.

Sixty-three high school girls, no foolin', have turned out for basketball practice at Greenville High School this week. Because most of the schools in the Miami Valley League do not have girls' basketball teams it has been difficult for Greenville lassies to book games, but to date Greenville's feminine team has scheduled games with Versailles, December 12; and Covington, December 19. After the Christmas holidays, an inter-class tournament will be arranged for girls' basketball at Greenville. Inter-scholastic girls' basketball appears to be on the increase in the Class A schools.

BOWLING

After dropping the first game by the wide margin of 120 pins, the Red Wing Co. bowling team staged a comeback and won the next two in a Recreation League match with the Lang Chevrolet Co. Thursday night. Dan Jordan had a series of 562 for the winners and L. McCoy rolled 537 to top Langs. Box score:

Red Wing Co.	178	144	186

CADETS LOSE STAR

Though Cy L. Letzter, Army football back, has been dropped from the cadet grid squad because he has discovered that he was older than the age limit when he entered West Point academy, the youth will continue as a student. When he entered the academy Letzter believed he was a year younger than he actually was.

BUCCANEERS' OPTIMISTIC OVER PROSPECTS OF BEATING SIDNEY

Opportunity knocks for Xenia Central High School gridgers Saturday afternoon and the Buccaneers are primed for their annual friendly gridiron scuffle with Sidney High's eleven to be staged at Julia Lamb Memorial Field at Sidney.

Never has a Xenia football team beaten a Sidney eleven and this fact will be an added incentive for the Bucs to bring home the bacon Saturday afternoon.

Despite the gloomy possibility that Birch Bell, quarterback, may not be able to play all the game and may not even start at all because of a broken thumb, Xenia gridgers are refusing to be disheartened and are grimly determined to win up their Miami Valley League schedule with a victory, which would inevitably be their third successive gridiron triumph if achieved.

The high school's thirty-piece band will also make the trip to Sidney through the generosity of a number of Xenia boosters who have volunteered the use of automobiles to furnish transportation. The following persons have offered machines to convey the band: Roy Spahr, B. U. Bell, Asa Price, City Manager M. C. Smith, Rev. H. B. McGree, Mrs. V. W. Burba, O. B. Bogart, Mrs. J. J. Stout and Fred Lang, who will not drive himself but will supply a car.

The autos transporting the band members will leave from in front of the high school at 11:30 o'clock Saturday morning and upon arriving at Sidney the motor cavalcade will stop two squares from the athletic field. The band will then form and make a grand entrance onto the football field.

Spying On Sports

Central Press Sports Editor

When that august body, the national football rules committee, is in convention assembled to discuss what's to be done and not to be done to the gridiron game, it is a pretty safe bet that somebody is going to pipe up with:

"And now, how about this here point after touchdown?"

Ye olde point-after-touchdown has been one of the football bones of contention for years, the cause of almost as much out-of-season debate as that other hardy perennial, the shift. And this year the p. a. t. wreaked much havoc to quite a number of football teams, the coaches of which are cost their outfits considerable glory.

The point-after-touchdown squabblers are divided into two distinct camps and both have good reasons for their stand.

Camp one harbors the anti-pointers who assert that the p. a. t. is not an actual part of the game, that it adds too much to the element of luck in football.

Camp two (the pro-pointers) declares that if a team wins by a successful try for point it deserves victory because it had definite superiority over the other eleven in that it scored a point when the losers couldn't, though given the same chance.

What may cause extra discussion of the point problem by the committee is the fact that this season two very important titles were lost through two teams failing to make the point good. Purdue lost its chance to tie for the Western conference title by losing to Michigan, 14-13, and Southern California lost a chance to tie for the Pacific coast title by losing to Washington State, 7-6.

Both of these games being of the highest importance of any played this season, the damage or good, depending on what team you root for, that has been done this season by the point rule is naturally exaggerated.

Alphabetically listed these games were:

California 7; St. Mary's 6.
Colorado 14; Colorado College 13.
Davidson 7; North Carolina 6.
Furman 14; Florida 13.
Georgetown 14; Michigan State 13.
Georgia 7; New York 6.
Georgia Tech 14; Auburn 12.
Haskell 13; Oklahoma A. and M. 12.
Michigan 14; Purdue 13.
Missouri 13; Drake 13.
Nebraska 13; Iowa State 12.
Pittsburgh 7; Carnegie Tech 6.
Purdue 7; Wisconsin 6.
Rice 13; Sam Houston 12.
South Carolina 7; Louisiana State 6.
South Carolina 14; Sewanee 13.
Temple 7; Bucknell 6.

W. and J. T. Bucknell 6.
Washington State 7; Southern California 6.
"Terrible," say the anti-pointers, "nineteen victims of a foolish rule!"

"Swell," come back the pro-pointers, "nineteen senseless ties avoided!"

Maybe they are both right.

LOSES TO CUPID

Charles W. Paddock, once the "world's fastest man," has lost a race to Dan Cupid. Engagement of the former track star to Mrs. Neva Prisk Malady, daughter of a Pasadena, Cal., publisher, has been announced. The wedding date is set for December 11.

PRESIDENT GIVEN POWER OF DICTATOR

HAVANA, Nov. 21.—A bill granting President Machado the power to suspend the rights of all Cuba and thereby invest himself with unlimited dictatorship was passed by the senate during its night session.

The measure passed by a vote of 46 to 4. Its approval by the house will be sought Monday.

The Herald de Cuba meanwhile published a report which said that secret police arrested the student board of directors of the University of Havana on charges of sedition for its recent demand that President Machado resign office.

The request came in an ultimatum to Senator Barreras, who had been appointed to establish peace between the government and students. The names of those allegedly arrested were not published.

TREASURY BALANCE

OHIO IN PATH OF COLD SPELL

By International News Service

Lying in the path of a winter storm which is sweeping eastward from the Rocky Mountain area, Ohio will probably be abruptly robbed of its prevailing "Indian summer" weather this week and fall into the grip of wintry blasts, weather bureau officials predicted today.

Cloudiness covered most sections of the state today, presaging the onslaught of cold weather with its snow and sleet. And when the "cold spell" arrives this time, weather officials declared, it will come to say until next spring.

Weather officials deduced from their charts today that the coming cold snap will probably arrive late Saturday and toboggan temperatures to freezing marks.

N. Y. STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Selling of the left-overs from yesterday's closing reaction carried the market slightly lower in the first period today, but there was no great pressure on the favorite stocks and good recoveries were made in all sections of the list early in the second hour. A $50,000,000 decrease in broker's loans, firmness in the commodity markets, confident statements by business heads and good investment-buying of stocks were the principal factors helping along the recovery.

The market as a whole was quiet and dull, with speculative interest centered mostly in a small group of the industrials and specialties. Chrysler Motor sold above 20 in the resumption of the upward move which was abruptly halted in the last hour yesterday. General Motors forged ahead to 36 3/4 for a fractional gain, and Electric Auto-Lite featured the accessories with a 3 1/4 point jump to 55 1/4.

FLAG PRESENTED TO HIGH SCHOOL BAND BY LODGE COUNCIL

An American flag was presented to the band of Central High School by Obidient Council, No. 160, Daughters of America, at an assembly in Jean B. Elwell auditorium Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Asa Price, state representative of Obidient Council, acted as presiding officer. Students sang "America" and the Rev. W. N. Shank, pastor of the First M. E. Church, led in prayer.

Mrs. Myrtle Wood, past state councillor and national representative, who made the presentation, said: "As this flag floats before you may it inspire each and every one, as he gazes upon its red stripes, to be brave, courageous and strong; its white stripes say, be upright, honest and noble and as you look upon its field of blue, covered with stars, each one will be reminded to be steadfast and united in all good purposes."

Acting Supt. F. R. Woodruff accepted the flag on behalf of the band. The pledge to the flag was given by the students and the band played "The Star Spangled Banner." Before the assembly closed short talks were given by Lester Price and Dorothy Lunford, seniors and John Beacham, asking the students to support the Cen-Sen, the school's annual.

LEGION CAMPAIGN NEARING GOAL

PAUL FULLER, commander of Foody Post, American Legion, hopes the post membership campaign will go "over the top" before Saturday.

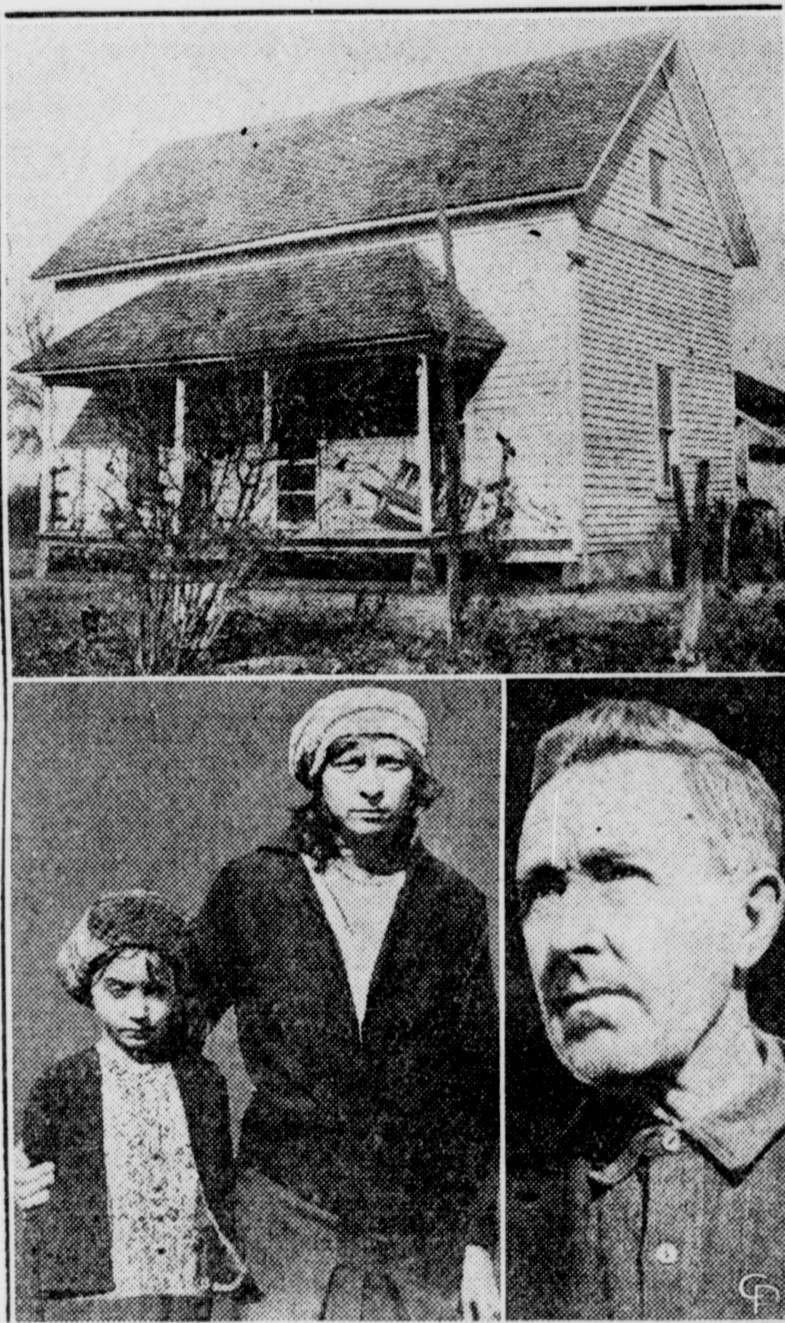

The drive now in progress is believed to be the most successful in years, but officers are waging a heated campaign Friday in order to obtain more members than last year.

They hope then to report a 100 per cent membership to the national commander of the Legion at a dinner to be given for him by the state department at the Neil House, Columbus, Saturday evening. Mr. Fuller will attend the dinner and it is also expected that Captain C. L. Darlington, ranking past state commander, Joseph Adams and possibly Loring Shepard will make the trip.

Names posted on the big board on the Court House lawn indicate that the post has already signed more than twenty new members while all of last year's members have not been solicited.

BAFFLED BY BISCUIT POISONING

With one dead and 20 made seriously ill, county authorities at Raleigh, Ill., near Harrisburg, have been trying to learn whether Mrs. F. J. Grisham, 52, cunningly devised a feast of death or someone else planned a wholesale murder. Two days after Mrs. Grisham entertained friends and relatives at dinner she died and 20 of the guests were ill. Examination of the food revealed arsenic in the biscuits. Further search showed arsenic in both the baking powder and flour from which the biscuits had been made. Photos show, top, the Grisham home; lower left, Mrs. George Grisham and her daughter, Juanita, who both were ill, and, right, F. J. Grisham, widowed husband. Mrs. Grisham once said she did not desire to live if her husband died. Mr. Grisham ate sparingly and was made only slightly ill.

Creamed Comments On S.S. Lesson

Zaccheus had many obstructions in the way of his being a disciple of Christ; he was engaged in an unpopular business which made him a despised Jew; he was socially ostracized because of his business; he likely had the worldly spirit of money getting; he was associated with men of like mind; then he was short of stature so that he could not see the passing Christ.

V. 1. "And Jesus entered and passed through Jericho." Jericho was a place of historic interest but Jesus did not have time for sight-seeing; however the least interest for a better life he found in any one would cause him to stop and furnish help.

V. 2. "And behold a man named Zaccheus; and he was a chief publican and he was rich." He was an official charged with collecting taxes; publicans were guilty of using extortionate methods in their work and charged with graft because they usually became rich.

V. 3. "And he sought to see Jesus who he was; and could not for the crowd, because he was little of stature." Possibly his desire to see Jesus grew out of his curiosity, having heard much of his wonderful life. Salvation always starts in desire.

V. 4. "And he ran on before, and climbed up into a sycamore tree to see him; for he was to pass that way." When one has a commendable desire, he needs to put his life in that desire and it will grow bigger and bigger; Zaccheus made his desire increase in strength by running and climbing to overcome his obstacle of stature. There are some roads where Jesus is most likely to travel and the one who desires to see him must do his best to meet him in the place he is most likely to be found; one place is in the church.

V. 5. "And when Jesus came to the place, he looked and said unto Zaccheus, make haste, and come down; for today I must abide at thy house." Jesus is not far away with a welcome to anyone seeking him; when the desire is hearty, then there is extended an invitation for fellowship; there is no better place to start the Christian life than in the home, which Jesus when on earth so many times glorified with his presence and his helpful deeds.

V. 6. "And he made haste and came down, and received him joyfully." Zaccheus did not stop to argue; he was getting more than he expected that little desire now filled his whole being so that he received him joyfully.

V. 7. "And when they saw him, they murmured, saying, he is gone in to lodge with a man that is a sinner." The general public called Zaccheus a sinner which was the right term for such publicans as infested the country. But Jesus treated this lonely persecuted man who had a desire to be better as a brother.

V. 8. "And Zaccheus stood and said unto the Lord, Behold, Lord, the half of my goods I give to the poor; and if I have wrongfully exacted aught of any man, I restore four-fold." The evidence of a truly converted soul is in his willingness to make wrongs right. There is no such thing as proceeding with Christ if an attempt is made to cover up wrongs.

V. 9. "And Jesus said unto him, today salvation come to this house, for as much as he also is a son of Abraham." Here was a new experience for Zaccheus; he was transformed; his motives and impulses were changed now being pure and righteous. Jesus called the experience salvation. It was so effective that the whole family joined with Zaccheus; a Christian family ought not to be divided.

V. 10. "For the Son of Man came to seek and to save that which was lost." This statement was implied in many former expressions of Christ but being surrounded by his critics he now made his purpose clear; this is the purpose that carried him to the cross.

FASTING AND FEASTING

Our Pilgrim fathers received a cold welcome to the shores of this continent, for the Mayflower entered Plymouth harbor amid a blinding snow storm. Many were the privations of those early months. At one time there was only a pint of corn in the whole settlement and five grains constituted each one's share. Harvests failed in the fields, the game departed from the forests.

Starvation threatened the little band and consequently Governor Bradford appointed a day of fasting and prayer. Before the day arrived, however, a ship came into the harbor, bringing letters, food and medicine for the sick, seeds for a new sowing. What a dramatic deliverance!

So the day appointed for fasting was changed to a day of feasting and thanksgiving for God's benefits in preserving their lives.

In these days of plenty and luxury, how seldom do we appreciate the sacrifices of those who broke ground and laid the cornerstone for the comforts we now enjoy.—D. Carl Yoder.

will never dream of entering any place of worship.

The feeling of dependency on a Higher Power has grown feeble it seems, and the feeling of gratitude for anything to anybody has seemed to vanish. The more we have, the less grateful we become. All conveniences, luxuries, comforts are taken for granted and we have seemingly forgotten the sacrifices, energies, ambitions of those who have gone before and made all these things possible for the enrichment of our lives.

Our capacity for gratitude has become dormant and until we are aroused to a spirit of thankfulness the Thanksgiving holiday will not be observed seriously enough.

At the International Congressional Council meeting held at Bournemouth, England, during the late summer, action was taken looking toward consolidation of all Congregational churches through a world-wide executive organization. Should this be carried through it will amalgamate some 24,275 churches in thirty-one countries with more than 6,000,000 members.

Though right it is to give thanks, true gratitude will live thanks.

V. 5. "And when Jesus came to the place, he looked and said unto Zaccheus, make haste, and come down; for today I must abide at thy house." Jesus is not far away with a welcome to anyone seeking him; when the desire is hearty, then there is extended an invitation for fellowship; there is no better place to start the Christian life than in the home, which Jesus when on earth so many times glorified with his presence and his helpful deeds.

V. 6. "And he made haste and came down, and said unto Jesus, Lord, I will follow thee." Zaccheus did not stop to argue; he was getting more than he expected that little desire now filled his whole being so that he received him joyfully.

V. 7. "And when they saw it, they murmured, saying, he is gone in to lodge with a man that is a sinner." The general public called Zaccheus a sinner which was the right term for such publicans as infested the country. But Jesus treated this lonely persecuted man who had a desire to be better as a brother.

V. 8. "And Zaccheus stood and said unto the Lord, Behold, Lord, the half of my goods I give to the poor; and if I have wrongfully exacted aught of any man, I restore fourfold." The evidence of a truly converted soul is in his willingness to make wrongs right. There is no such thing as proceeding with Christ if an attempt is made to cover up wrongs.

V. 9. "And Jesus said unto him, today salvation come to this house, for as much as he also is a son of Abraham." Here was a new experience for Zaccheus; he was transformed; his motives and impulses were changed now being pure and righteous. Jesus called the experience salvation. It was so effective that the whole family joined with Zaccheus; a Christian family ought not to be divided.

V. 10. "For the Son of Man came to seek and to save that which was lost." This statement was implied in many former expressions of Christ but being surrounded by his critics he now made his purpose clear; this is the purpose that carried him to the cross.

FASTING AND FEASTING

Our Pilgrim fathers received a cold welcome to the shores of this continent, for the Mayflower entered Plymouth harbor amid a blinding snow storm. Many were the privations of those early months. At one time there was only a pint of corn in the whole settlement and five grains constituted each one's share. Harvests failed in the fields, the game departed from the forests.

Starvation threatened the little band and consequently Governor Bradford appointed a day of fasting and prayer. Before the day arrived, however, a ship came into the harbor, bringing letters, food and medicine for the sick, seeds for a new sowing. What a dramatic deliverance!

So the day appointed for fasting was changed to a day of feasting and thanksgiving for God's benefits in preserving their lives.

In these days of plenty and luxury, how seldom do we appreciate the sacrifices of those who broke ground and laid the cornerstone for the comforts we now enjoy.—D. Carl Yoder.

will never dream of entering any place of worship.

The feeling of dependency on a Higher Power has grown feeble it seems, and the feeling of gratitude for anything to anybody has seemed to vanish. The more we have, the less grateful we become.

All conveniences, luxuries, comforts are taken for granted and we have seemingly forgotten the sacrifices, energies, ambitions of those who have gone before and made all these things possible for the enrichment of our lives.

Our capacity for gratitude has become dormant and until we are aroused to a spirit of thankfulness the Thanksgiving holiday will not be observed seriously enough.

At the International Congressional Council meeting held at Bournemouth, England, during the late summer, action was taken looking toward consolidation of all Congregational churches through a world-wide executive organization. Should this be carried through it will amalgamate some 24,275 churches in thirty-one countries with more than 6,000,000 members.

Discussion on Questions S. S. Lesson

1. Why are taxes so unpopular? How change this attitude?

2. Of what value may obstructions be to one seeking to live a better life?

3. When is a business a Christian business?

4. What are some things in business today that ought to be Christianized?

5. What are the spiritual dangers of money getting?

6. How may the industrial system of capital and labor be made more Christian?

7. What are some of the things that prevent business men being converted to Christ?

Clericus says, "We are often down in an unspiritual crowd where we cannot see Christ. Get up into some tree of higher vision and clearer view and better thought and purpose, climb the tree of penitence, get up in the lofty branches of prayer and heavenly aspiration and you too shall see Jesus."

Lesson prayer, "Help us to sense opportunities to rise and with a firm determination overcome every obstacle that obstructs upward pathways; help us to seek that satisfying life with all earnestness, never ceasing till we find the Lord who alone satisfies our highest longings."

By EDNA ROBB WEBSTER Author of "DAD'S GIRL" etc.

READ THIS FIRST:

Joretta Dowling is the only daughter of one of the biggest merchants in the west. Wise with the wisdom of the modern girl to whom life is an open book, indulged with luxury, yet capable, poised and sensible. She is about to be presented to society in a perfect setting for her golden love-liness, by her socially ambitious mother, who has dominated and managed her daughter. The object of their campaign is Norman Williams, son of a wealthy shipbuilder, from whom Allan Dowling has just bought a yacht. Joretta will christen the new ship at a party that evening. "Uncle Charley" is a second cousin of Allan, a faithful retainer of the household and very fond of Joretta. Norman arrives at the party early, as do Sally, Ruth and Helen, her girl friends. Norman tells Joretta that he got an engineer for the yacht from their plant. His name is Jim Norton. Mrs. Dowling impresses upon Joretta the importance of her marriage to Norman. Allan Dowling is a vain and pompous man, proud of being self-made, with a weakness for adventure. The yacht is christened and during the evening, Norman proposes to Joretta, who accepts him. They decide to tell their parents at once. She meets Jim Norton, and both experience a mutual attraction. Driving home that night, Norman stops the car and takes her into his arms.

(NOW GO ON WITH STORY)

CHAPTER 6

"Jett, why can't we finish this up at once. Get married to-night. No one would care. Now that you're mine, I don't want to give you up—not for a minute. I want you now, and always. With a couple of generous bribes, I can fix it all fine. What do you say?" The exhilaration and the wine had unbalanced him somewhat. Besides, he had not altogether missed the significance of her hesitancy in accepting him. And now that she was in the mood, it would be darn smart to get the thing over with. Get her while he had the chance. No time like right now for doing anything, he thought a little disconcertedly.

Norman's suggestion was so foreign to her thoughts and seemed so preposterous to her that it frightened her. When she had agreed to the engagement earlier in the evening, the actual idea of marriage had been so vague and distant that it seemed to have very little real connection at all. Sometime, she had promised, she would be Norman's wife; but it had never occurred to her that "sometime" might be very soon.

Again, his business and power made her afraid of him, afraid of herself. If he could so persuade her to promise to marry him, what else might he not do? She tried to draw away from him.

"Oh, Norman—no—not tonight!" she gasped.

"Haven't changed your mind at-

ready, have you?" he demanded brusquely.

"Why—no—but I didn't say I was ready yet. Besides, it would be an awful blow to mother. She'll want a big wedding for us—"

"All nonsense," impatiently. "What difference does all that make? If you loved me, you'd be ready any time."

"Oh, please, Norman! I don't think you know what you're saying, do you? Haven't you celebrated our engagement a bit too strenuously?" She tried to laugh away the awkward situation.

But he was in no mood to be reprimanded. "That's right. Start nagging me right from the beginning. Is that the kind of wife you're going to be?"

"Well, if you feel that way about it, I don't have to be your wife at all," resentfully.

"No? Well see about that." She didn't know what to say. She didn't want to make him angry here and now; besides, she knew his rudeness was caused by too much liquor. How could she persuade him to drive her home and leave her for tonight?

His mood changed abruptly, to her vast relief. "Come on, Jett, be a sport. I didn't mean what I just said. You know—I'm so crazy about you I lose my head. Let's surprise the whole bunch and get it over with." He held her so close now that he hurt her, and his face was pressed to hers.

"It's impossible, Norman. Please drive me home. We'll talk it over tomorrow, and perhaps we can arrange for it soon. If you love me, you will."

"Oh, all right. I thought you were a better sport than that, Jett. But I'll take you home to your mother. I'm no cave man."

With a tremendous relief, she settled back into her corner as he started the motor and shot out into the highway. All the way, he drove at a terrific speed, while she shrank back in fear and watched the road with her tired burning eyes, that seemed to draw her gaze like a steel magnet.

She sat so tensely that when they swung into the curving drive at her home, her effort to relax was painful. Norman hadn't said another word all the way—and neither had she.

Now, he said, "Well, you're home all safe and single. Does that suit you?"

"Thank you, Norman. Sleep it off and come over tomorrow evening, will you?" she laid her hand on his arm with a little appealing gesture.

He covered it with his own. "All right, Jett. Sorry if I annoyed you. It's all right. Got a little kiss for me?"

She responded to his caress as quickly as possible. Her father and mother had just arrived and were in the library when she came in. She stood in the doorway, her coat falling away from one white shoulder and sweeping the floor. Strenuous as the day had been, with the added strain of the reckless drive home, she looked radiantly fresh and young to her two fond elders.

Her mother went toward her and took her in her arms. "Is my little girl tired after her big day? You certainly put the right climax on it, dear. Much as I wanted you to accept Norman, it was quite a surprise for us. Wasn't it, dad?"

"Leave it to Jett, mother. She knows what she's doing. Her inference was only pretense all the time, anyway, eh, daughter?" he twinkled.

Joretta raised her shoulders and sighed softly. "No, I think I was as surprised as anyone. But I'm glad you're all satisfied. I'm not so sure I am."

Her parents exchanged quick glances. Mrs. Dowling laughed lightly. "There, dear, you are so tired. What a day for a little girl. Off to bed with you and you'll be the happiest girl in the world tomorrow. Every girl has doubts and misgivings after she takes the first step. But you'll get over that."

She kissed Joretta on the cheek and led her from the room.

After a hot tub and a brisk rub, Joretta felt as if she had washed away part of the bewildering doubts, in her sheer silk pajamas, deeply flounced with lace, she sat before her dressing table, brushing her hair with brisk strokes, her hair gleamed like gold satin and the waves cast dull shadows as she moved.

Her thoughts were still chaos. And odd, try as she would to ignore it, a trim uniformed figure with sleek black hair and black-lashed grey eyes persisted through them all. There was something more about Jim Norton than his handsome appearance which had attracted her attention. He wasn't the first handsome man she had met. Striking men were common enough, but he was looking enough. It wasn't just that.

Why had Jim Norton looked at her as if he experienced the same thing? No doubt, beautiful girls were common enough to him, also. She moved her brush slowly, thoughtfully, delighting in the memory of the way his deep, serious eyes had looked at her. Just the memory of it gave her a pleasant sensation, new to her experience.

Then, she remembered. She was engaged to Norman. She had taken the brush in her other hand and the mirror reflected the handsome platinum-mounted diamond which she had worn only a few hours.

Its facets caught and reflected the light into the glass in a myriad of changing colors. She would be the envy of half the girls of her set. Not a few of them had been playing their hands furiously to win Norman Williams. He was one of the best eligibles in the west. She smiled to herself as she thought of the mothers whose dream castles would shatter when they heard of her engagement the next morning.

She would be the subject of discussion over scores of breakfast trays; aspiring mothers versus hopeful daughters. And reflected that her mother would quite have despaired, had Norman's fancy selected another girl tonight.

To bewilderment to debate her situation any longer, she kicked off her orthopedic slippers and sank into one of the modernistic twin beds that were finished in silver and black enamel. Surrounded with a maze of lustrous brocade and lace, gleaming crystal and silver, beauty and luxury, the newly-affiliated bride slept in the delicious weariness that only youth knows.

She was awakened next morning by the ringing of the telephone bell beside her bed. The room was still darkened with the drawn curtains, but the little silver clock beside the telephone impudently informed her that it was eleven-thirty. It was Norman calling.

"Good morning, sweetheart. Did I call you to early?"

"Of course not, Norman."

"Oh, did it, because I couldn't wait longer to tell you I'm sorry I was rather a beast last night to you. I meant what I said, but I know I was unreasonable. Forgive me, please."

"Well, it was a big day, Jett," he laughed. "I'll go slower again. May I see you tonight—or this minute—the sooner, the better. How about lunch at the club, any time it suits you?"

"All right. I'll meet you about one. In the Palm Room?"

"That's sweet of you, dear. Now I know I'm forgiven. I can breathe easier. Shall we get a crowd together and go somewhere to celebrate tonight?"

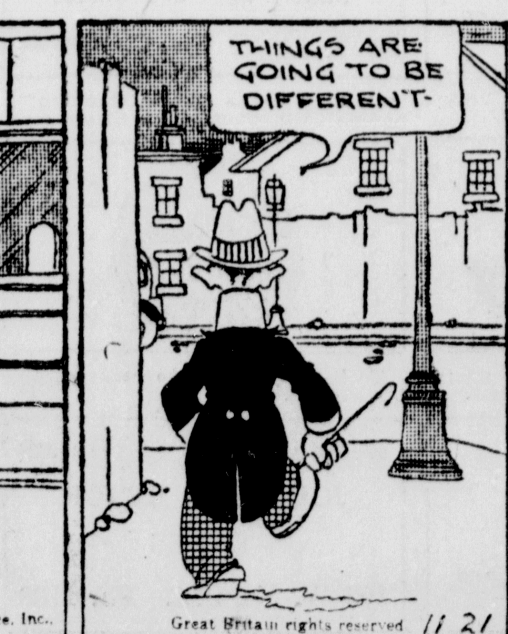

"Have you forgotten Deborah Walling's reception tonight? There will be six more girls 'out' in the next fortnight."

"I'm not interested in the rest of them. The first one out is the best, but I'll go to the rest of the parties if I may have most of the dances with you."

By EDNA ROBB WEBSTER Author of 'DAD'S GIRL' etc.

READ THIS FIRST:

Joretta Dowling is the only daughter of one of the biggest merchants in the west. Wise with the wisdom of the modern girl to whom life is an open book, indulged with luxury, yet capable, poised and sensible. She is about to be presented to society in a perfect setting for her golden loveliness, by her socially ambitious mother, who has dominated and managed her daughter. The object of their campaign is Norman Williams, son of a wealthy shipbuilder, from whom Allan Dowling has just bought a yacht. Joretta will christen the new ship at a party that evening.

"Uncle Charley" is a second cousin of Allan, a faithful retainer of the household and very fond of Joretta. Norman arrives at the party early, as do Sally, Ruth and Helen, her girl friends. Norman tells Joretta that he got an engineer for the yacht from their plant. His name is Jim Norton. Mrs. Dowling impresses upon Joretta the importance of her marriage to Norman. Allan Dowling is a vain and pompous man, proud of being self-made, with a weakness for adventure. The yacht is christened and during the evening, Norman proposes to Joretta, who just said: "You know—I'm so crazy about you I lose my head. Let's surprise the whole bunch and get it over with." He held her so close now that he hurt her, and his face was pressed to hers.

"It's impossible, Norman. Please drive me home. We'll talk it over tomorrow, and perhaps we can arrange for it soon. If you love me, you will."

"Oh, all right. I thought you were a better sport than that, Jettie. But I'll take you home to your mother. I'm no cave man."

With a tremendous relief, she settled back into her corner as he started the motor and shot out into the highway. All the way, he drove at a terrific speed, while she drank back in fear and watched the road with her tired burning eyes, that seemed to draw her gaze like a steel magnet.

She sat so tensely that when they swung into the curving drive at her home, her effort to relax was painful. Norman hadn't said another word all the way—and neither had she.

Now, he said, "Well, you're home all safe and single. Does that suit you?"

"Thank you, Norman. Sleep it off and come over tomorrow evening, will you?" she laid her hand on his arm with a little appealing gesture.

He covered it with his own. "All right, Jettie. Sorry if I annoyed you. It's all right. Got a little kiss for me?"

She responded to his caress and slipped out of his arms as quickly as possible. Her father and mother had just arrived and were in the library when she came in. She stood in the doorway, her coat falling away from one white shoulder and sweeping the floor. Strenuous ready, have you?" he demanded brusquely.

"Why—no—but I didn't say I was ready yet. Besides, it would be an awful blow to mother. She'll want a big wedding for us—"

"All nonsense," impatiently. "What difference does all that make? If you loved me, you'd be ready any time."

"Oh, please, Norman! I don't think you know what you're saying, do you? Haven't you celebrated our engagement a bit too strenuously?" She tried to laugh away the awkward situation.

But he was in no mood to be reprimanded. "That's right. Start nagging me right from the beginning. Is that the kind of wife you're going to be?"

"Well, if you feel that way about it, I don't have to be your wife at all," resentfully.

"No! We'll see about that."

She didn't know what to say. She didn't want to make him angry here and now; besides, she knew his rudeness was caused by too much liquor. How could she persuade him to drive her home and leave her for tonight?

His mood changed abruptly, to her vast relief. "Come on, Jettie, be a sport. I didn't mean what I just said. You know—I'm so crazy about you I lose my head. Let's surprise the whole bunch and get it over with."

He held her so close now that he hurt her, and his face was pressed to hers. "It's impossible, Norman. Please drive me home. We'll talk it over tomorrow, and perhaps we can arrange for it soon. If you love me, you will."

She responded to his caress and slipped out of his arms as quickly as possible. Her father and mother had just arrived and were in the library when she came in. She stood in the doorway, her coat falling away from one white shoulder and sweeping the floor. Strenuous as the day had been, with the added strain of the reckless drive home, she looked radiantly fresh and young to her two fond elders.

Her mother went toward her and took her in her arms. "Is my little girl tired after her big day? You certainly put the right climax on it, dear. Much as I wanted you to accept Norman, it was quite a surprise for us. Wasn't it, dad?"

"Leave it to Jettie, mother. She knows what she's doing. Her indifference was only pretense all the time, anyway, eh, daughter?" he twinkled.

Joretta raised her shoulders and sighed softly. "No, I think I was as surprised as anyone. But I'm glad you're all satisfied. I'm not so sure I am."

Her parents exchanged quick glances. Mrs. Dowling laughed lightly. "There, dear. You are so tired. What a day for a little girl. Off to bed with you and you'll be the happiest girl in the world tomorrow. Every girl has doubts and misgivings after she takes the first step. But you'll get over that."

She kissed Joretta on the cheek and led her from the room.

After a hot tub and a brisk rub, Joretta felt as if she had washed away all the part of the bewildering doubts. In her sheer silk pajamas, deeply flounced with lace, she sat before her dressing table, brushing her hair with brisk strokes. Her hair gleamed like gold satin and the waves cast dull shadows as she moved.

Her thoughts were still chaos. And oddly, try as she would to ignore it, a trim uniformed figure with sleek black hair and black-lashed grey eyes persisted through them all. There was something more about Jim Norton than his handsome appearance which had attracted her attention. He wasn't the first handsome man she had met. Striking men were common enough. Norman wasn't one of them, but he was good looking enough. It wasn't girls of that type that Jim Norton looked at.

Why had Jim Norton looked at her as he neared the door? No doubt, beautiful, she was common enough to him, also. She moved her brush slowly, thoughtfully, delighting in the memory of the way his deep, serious eyes had looked at her, just the memory of it gave her a pleasant sensation, new to her experience.

Then, she remembered. She was engaged to Norman. She had taken the brush in her other hand and the mirror reflected the handsome platinum-mounted diamond which she had worn only a few hours. Its facets caught and reflected the light into the glass in a myriad of changing colors. She would be the envy of half the girls of her set. Not a few of them had been playing their hands furiously to win Norman Williams. He was one of the best eligibles in the west. She smiled to herself as she thought of the mothers whose dream castles would shatter when they heard of her engagement the next morning.

The Theater

Hollywood is vindicating itself of many sins by putting its heart into a new civic theater movement which aims to produce artistic plays, regardless of their popular appeal.

The Great God Box-Office, which presides over film production, will have no sanctuary in the new theater. Artistic merit will be the sole judge by which plays are chosen and actors may express those artistic longings so ruthlessly repressed by cold studio executives. Already one play has been staged, "The Apple Cart," political extravaganza by George Bernard Shaw, strictly intellectual. The aesthetes of the film colony turned out for Shaw in a body and enthusiastically gave of their support, advice and services providing it did not conflict with their studio contracts.

They showed the same sort of co-operation when they helped civic leaders build the Hollywood Bowl, the amphitheater in the Hollywood hills which is the scene, each summer of symphony and other concerts, conducted by world-famous artists. Many of the film colony have season tickets and attend every performance. It was originally intended to make the Bowl into a Greek theater and a group of enthusiasts tramped many days looking for a site. They finally found it but complications set in and the Bowl ended as a concert place.

Now then, anxious to establish a civic institution comparable to the Theater Guild of New York, the Chicago Art Theater, the Detroit Civic Theater and others, the civic theater movement has been launched. Like other community theaters the civic repertory will depend upon season subscriptions for its budget instead of boxoffice receipts and will thus plan its repertoire irrespective of the popular appeal of the plays.

Maurice Chevalier, France's "laughing man," has been signed to appear in London for $20,000 a week, the highest salary ever paid a musical comedy star in England. His success in Hollywood is responsible for the high salary since the producer who has signed him says it has made him the biggest box-office attraction of the time on either side of the Atlantic.

Chevalier will open December 1 at the new Dominion Theater. His earnings will probably exceed $20,000 a week as his contract calls for 50 per cent of the takings with a minimum guarantee of $20,000. It is estimated he now makes $400,000 a year.

William Clifford Shyright, nationally known vaudeville actor and former circus star, died in Urbana yesterday of apoplexy. He was 61. Shyright was born in Urbana joined a circus at an early age and became famous in vaudeville in a "single" song and dance presentation. He had lived in retirement several years.

Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur To Give Address Over Radio

RESULTS achieved by the White House Child Health Conference will be told Saturday evening from 9:30 to 10 o'clock, by Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, secretary of the interior, in a speech arranged by the Washington Star and broadcast over the CBS network, coming through station WKRC, Cincinnati.

Secretary Wilbur was chairman of the conference which was in session from Wednesday to Saturday. His radio address will sum up the conference. The speech of President Herbert Hoover, who addressed the assembly when the conference opened was heard over the radio Wednesday evening.

Opera On Air

For the first time the opera "Lorenzaccio" will be offered to radio listeners when it is broadcast over the NBC network Saturday from 10 to 11 p. m. E. S. The program can be heard through station WCKY, Covington, Ky.

Damrosch And Gibbons Heard

A symphony orchestra under the direction of that well-known conductor, Walter Damrosch, will broadcast an interesting program Saturday over the NBC network. Another feature of the program will be a ten minute science talk by Floyd Gibbons, the well known headline hunter. The program is on the air at 9 p. m., coming through station WSAI, Cincinnati.

Schumann-Heink Sings

Again this season Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink will appear as guest artist on the Enna Jettick Melodies broadcast over an NBC network Sunday evening at 8 o'clock, coming through WCKY, Covington.

Davey Hour On Air

Another program of old-time songs that will bring back memories of days gone by will be broadcast on the Davey Tree Hour Sunday afternoon from 5 to 6 o'clock. The program will be heard over WSAI, Cincinnati. The program will include old-time love songs, hymns, and instrumental numbers.

Minister To Speak

J. H. Van Royen, minister of the Netherlands to the United States, will be the speaker in the Conclave of Nations program over the CBS network Sunday afternoon from 1:30 to 2 o'clock. He will be introduced by Rep. Hamilton Fish of New York.

"Right Living" Discussed

Dr. S. Parkes Cadman will discuss "Right Living" over the Cadman radio hour Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock, through WSAI, Cincinnati. Music appropriate to the Thanksgiving season will appear on the same program.

DR. RAY LYMAN WILBUR.

MISS LA CROIX IS HEARD AT CHURCH

The assembly period of the Standard Training School for church school leaders in session this week at the First Presbyterian Church was led by Miss Dorothy LaCroix Thursday evening. She demonstrated a worship service for the children's division of the church school and gave a background story of the life of David, leading up to an appreciation of the twenty-third Psalm. She then quoted the Psalm with emphasis on certain phrases.

There will be no assembly period Friday evening, giving more time to the students and teachers to complete their final work. Credits earned will be turned in Friday evening and all receiving them will be recognized at a special union service at the First M. E. Church Sunday evening.

JUVENILE JUDGE TO PROBE SHOOTING

Whether the death of William Orlyn Bell, 13, colored, Jamestown, last Wednesday was due to the discharge of a sawed-off 22 caliber rifle discharged by the boy himself accidentally will be left to the determination of Juvenile Judge S. C. Wright, Prosecutor J. Carl Marshall announced Friday.

Melvin Davis, 14, also of Jamestown, who is being held in the juvenile detention quarters of the county jail for further investigation in connection with the shooting, is scheduled to be brought before Judge Wright Friday afternoon for questioning.

Davis, owner of the rifle from which the shot that killed the Bell boy was fired, maintains Bell shot himself accidentally but authorities are not satisfied that the shooting was entirely accidental and it was decided to hold Davis for further examination.

FATHER BOUND OVER ON CUTTING CHARGE

Albert Clark, 56, colored, E. Third St., was bound over to the grand jury under $500 bond on a charge of cutting with intent to kill by Municipal Judge E. Dawson Smith following a hearing Thursday afternoon. In default of bond he was ordered sent to jail to await grand jury action in his case.

Clark, police say, attacked and stabbed his son, Earl, 21, with a pocket knife during a dispute over a trivial matter at their home last November 10. The father inflicted serious stab wounds in the back and chest of his son, who recently was able to return home after recovering from his injuries at the County Infirmary hospital.

MISS LA CROIX IS HEARD AT CHURCH

The assembly period of the Standard Training School for church school leaders in session this week at the First Presbyterian Church was led by Miss Dorothy LaCroix Thursday evening. She demonstrated a worship service for the children's division of the church school and gave a background story of the life of David, leading up to an appreciation of the twenty-third Psalm. She then quoted the Psalm with emphasis on certain phrases.

There will be no assembly period Friday evening, giving more time to the students and teachers to complete their final work. Credits earned will be turned in Friday evening and all receiving them will be recognized at a special union service at the First M. E. Church Sunday evening.

JUVENILE JUDGE TO PROBE SHOOTING

Whether the death of William Orlyn Bell, 13, colored, Jamestown, last Wednesday was due to the discharge of a sawed-off 22 caliber rifle discharged by the boy himself accidentally will be left to the determination of Juvenile Judge S. C. Wright, Prosecutor J. Carl Marshall announced Friday.

Melvin Davis, 14, also of Jamestown, who is being held in the juvenile detention quarters of the county jail for further investigation in connection with the shooting, is scheduled to be brought before Judge Wright Friday afternoon for questioning.

Davis, owner of the rifle from which the shot that killed the Bell boy was fired, maintains Bell shot himself accidentally but authorities are not satisfied that the shooting was entirely accidental and it was decided to hold Davis for further examination.

FATHER BOUND OVER ON CUTTING CHARGE

Albert Clark, 56, colored, E. Third St., was bound over to the grand jury under $500 bond on a charge of cutting with intent to kill by Municipal Judge E. Dawson Smith following a hearing Thursday afternoon. In default of bond he was ordered sent to jail to await grand jury action in his case.

Clark, police say, attacked and stabbed his son, Earl, 21, with a pocket knife during a dispute over a trivial matter at their home last November 10. The father inflicted serious stab wounds in the back and chest of his son, who recently was able to return home after recovering from his injuries at the County Infirmary hospital.
